Mill Owners Post Notice of Increase Following Action by N. E. Cotton Mills

What is believed to be the definite ending of the Lawrence textile strike of sixteen weeks' duration, as exclusively announced in last Friday's American, came today when the American Woolen Company posted notices in its mills in that city that an increase of wages amounting to at least 15 per cent. effective June 2 would be granted.

This announcement is interpreted as positive confirmation of the reaching of an agreement between the mill

Drive for Salvation Army Is Lagging

With Boston lagging in the Salvation Army drive, local workers and heads of committees today redoubled their efforts to bring the city "up to the mark."

If Boston is to attain its quota of $400,000, it must raise $50,000 a day. Up to this morning, only $42,630 had been reported by Alfred L. Aiken, treasurer of the Boston committee.

Workers were hopeful, however, that scattered reports not yet turned in would swell this figure appreciably.

In an effort to stimulate contributions, automobile men met for luncheon at the Hotel Lenox today, where they were addressed by Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole. General Cole is in charge of the Boston drive.

LIBERTY HALL RALLY.

A rally at Liberty Hall on the Common at noon drew a large crowd of spectators, who listened to stories of the Salvation Army's work for soldiers overseas, told by returned service men. Fred B. Walker presided.

Among the speakers were Sergeant J. J. Donovan, who was 18 months overseas, saw service on every front, and was decorated with the Croix de

50 FLEE FIRE ON ST. BOTOLPH STREET

Mrs. Lilah Curtis, an invalid, was burned about the head and face, and fifty occupants were forced into the street by fire in the four and one-half-story brick building at No. 127 St. Botolph street, today.

The fire started in a pile of rubbish in the basement and worked its way up through the air shaft. The heaviest damage was done on the third and fourth floors. The loss is estimated at $5,000.

The second floor was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Odell; third floor by Mrs. Mary J. Blevins, and the fourth floor by Alexander Bialdovsky. All families had lodgers, mostly students.

ALL HOPE GONE FOR FLIERS

NC-4 Jumps From Horta to Ponta Delgada in Rapid Flight

Washington, May 20.—The NC-4 jumped from Horta to Ponta del Gada today, arriving at 10:24, Washington time, the Navy Department was advised by Admiral Jackson. The distance between Horta and Ponta del Gada is approximately 150 miles, and the NC-4 made the trip at the average rate of 95 miles an hour. Read will remain at Ponta del Gada until weather conditions are favorable for a continuance of the flight to Lisbon.

London, May 20.—The Sopwith biplane that carried Harry G. Hawker and his navigator, Lieutenant-Commander Grieve, from Newfoundland in the attempt to cross the Atlantic, was given up as lost this afternoon.

General Sykes announced that such a violent gale is raging off the Irish coast that destroyers which put to sea in the faint hope that the men might be still alive, had been unable to return to port.

Admiralty officials said it was inconceivable that Hawker and Grieve could have survived such a storm.

Even close friends of the missing aviators have abandoned hope that the men will be found alive. They are nearly thirty hours overdue.

It was announced today that parts of Hawker's biplane had been found off the Irish coast. There has been no confirmation of this.

A rough sea was running off the Irish coast late yesterday, and doubt was expressed that the tiny emergency boat fastened over the Sopwith's turtleback could weather such waves more than a few minutes even if Hawker succeeded in launching her.

Both men carried non-sinkable rubber suits, but the officials here had little hope that they would be picked up in time to save them.

DECLARES POPE ACTIVE TO BRING ABOUT PEACE

London, May 20.—The Roman Catholic archbishop of Breslau announces that, at his request, Pope Benedict XV., is "actively intervening" to facilitate acceptance of the allies' peace terms by Germans, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

The following is the text in full of the President's message delivered to Congress today.

Gentlemen of the Congress:

I deeply regret my inability to be present at the opening of the extraordinary session of the Congress. It still seems to be my duty to take part in the councils of the Peace Conference and contribute what I can to the solution of the innumerable questions to whose settlement it has had to address itself. For they are questions which affect the peace of the whole world and from them, therefore, the United States cannot stand apart.

I deemed it my duty, to call the Congress together at this time because it was not wise to postpone longer the provisions which must be made for the support of the Government.

Many of the appropriations which are absolutely necessary for the maintenance of the Government and the fulfillment of its varied obligations for the fiscal year 1919-1920 have not yet been made; the end of the present fiscal year is at hand; and action upon these appropriations can no longer be prudently delayed.

It is necessary, therefore, that I should immediately ask your active attention to this critical need. It is hardly necessary for me to urge this that it may receive your prompt attention.

I shall take the liberty of addressing you on my return on the subjects which have most engrossed our attention and the attention of the world during these last anxious months, since the armistice of last November was signed, the international settlements which must form the subject matter of the present treaties of peace and of our national action in the immediate future.

DISCUSSION NOW PREMATURE.

It would be premature to discuss them or express a judgment about them before they are brought to their complete formulation by the agreements which are now being worked out at the table of the conference. I shall hope to lay them before you in their many aspects as soon as arrangements have been reached.

I hesitate to venture any opinion or press any recommendation with regard to domestic legislation while absent from the United States and out of daily touch with its many sources of information and counsel. I am conscious that I need advise so long as absent from Washington, to seek the advice of those who have remained in constant contact with domestic problems and who have known them close at

WOULD AMEND WAR PROHIBITION

Washington, May 20.—President Wilson today called upon the Sixty-sixth Congress to amend or to repeal the wartime prohibition measure in so far as it applies to wines and beers.

In his message—the first that he has not delivered in person since taking up the reins of the government—the President asserted his belief that the demobilization of the army had progressed to such an extent that it would be "entirely safe" to remove the ban upon the manufacture and sale of wines and beers.

He plainly indicated that had he the authority he would take the necessary action himself, but, lacking it, he urged the Congress to act.

The President also urged:

1—Adoption of the equal suffrage amendment.

2—Certain revision of the tariff laws.

3—Repeal of the so-called luxury taxes and continued high rates on incomes, excess profits and estates.

4—Legislation to safeguard the public interest before the telephone and telegraph systems are turned back to private ownership.

5—Laws to facilitate American enterprise in foreign trade.

6—Assistance for returning soldiers in finding jobs for which they are fitted.

The message does not touch upon the international situation, but the President promises to address the Congress upon these matters upon his return.

"It would be premature to discuss them or to express a judgment about them before they are brought to their complete formulation by the arrangements which are now being wrought at the table of the conference," the President asserts.

The President's only reference to the League of Nations is but a passing one, but at the same time it reflected his confidence that the league

OVER $2,200,000 IN FUND FOR METHODISTS

The total subscription up to noon today of the Methodist Centenary campaign was $2,228,150. This is the result of two and a half days' canvass, and is about one-half the amount of the New England quota. Springfield quoted Boston today from the first position, having to date about 75 per cent of its quota. Boston is now running second with 70 per cent. Springfield's subscription to date is $45,000, while Boston has reached $110,916. The total amount set for New England is $5,464,650.

DEMANDS FACTS OF U. S. RUSSIAN CAMPAIGN.

Washington, May 20.—Investigation of the proposed dispatch of 8,000 United States soldiers to Siberia was proposed in the Senate today. Senator Johnson of California presented a resolution calling upon the Secretaries of State and War to state why troops were sent to Siberia.

"READY" IF GERMANS DON'T SIGN, SAYS FOCH.

Brussels, May 20.—"The Germans will sign the peace treaty when they see they cannot avoid it," declared Marshal Foch, the allied generalissimo, in an interview here today. "If they do not sign it we are ready."

SALANDRA QUITS ITALIAN PEACE DELEGATION

Milan, May 20.—Former Premier Salandra and the Marquis Salvago-Raggi have resigned from the Italian peace delegation, and Signor Barzilai will resign today, it is said, as they were not allowed to participate actively in the settlement of Italian questions. The Ambassador Imperiali Diedieri and Bonilangara will succeed them.

Fiume National Council Committee Declares City Legally Bound to Italy

Fiume, May 19, via Milan and Paris, May 20.—A committee of the National Council met today and adopted a resolution declaring that the Fiume plebiscite of Oct. 30 legally binds the city and surrounding territory to Italy. A copy of the resolution was sent to the peace conference in Paris.

The resolution states, furthermore, that the conference cannot detach the city from Italy without the consent of the people who are ready to resist any act of violence committed against them.

Von Brockdorff-Rantzau May Not Sign Treaty, but Other Councillors Will

Paris, May 20.—The Petit Journal stated today that it is understood in official circles that Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation, will not sign the treaty, although it will be signed by two councillors of the German empire who are due to arrive at Versailles this week.

JOHNSON ASKS PUBLICATION OF TREATY

International News Service.

Washington, May 20.—Immediate publication of the peace treaty in full was demanded in a resolution presented to the Senate today by Senator Johnson of California. The resolution calls upon the Secretary of State to make public the peace treaty "in order that the people of the United States may know to what engagements they are committed."

The challenge that the Senate opponents of the proposed League of Nations will be unable to muster a sufficient majority either to amend it or separate it from the peace treaty was flung at Senator Lodge of Massachusetts and other Republican leaders by Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Democratic leader and retiring chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

President Wilson was requested to state in itemized form just how he spent the $2,000,000 war fund allowed him by Congress, in a resolution introduced in the House by Representative Gould of New York.

Violations of the articles of war respecting courts-martial were charged by Representative Gould in a resolution calling on the Secretary of War to report the number of enlisted men in the American army at home and abroad who have been held in confinement for courts-martial beyond the forty-day limit, and to state why such men have not been released.

The food administration was directed in a resolution presented by Representative Fitzgerald of Massachusetts to release for public sale all foodstuffs held by it and not urgently required for governmental purposes for the purpose of reducing exorbitant prices.

Facts concerning measures taken by the American government for protection of Americans and of their properties and rights in Mexico were sought in a resolution addressed to the State Department introduced by Representative Gould of New York. Special information was requested concerning American oil properties and interests.

"Pols" Stunned! City Employe Refuses More Pay

Interest in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts mounted apace today because it is the business location of Hanford L. Story.

Mr. Story is a rare gentleman. He distinctly refuses an increase in salary. He is a city employe, other city employes cannot understand it.

He is clerk to the Boston Art Commission at $100 a year. A budget session of the city Council developed the startling almost disgusting information to the councillors that Mr. Story is perfectly satisfied with the four hundred. So the council was told by John Templeman Coolidge, secretary of the Art Commission.

Mr. Coolidge explained that Mr. Story, in his other capacity of registrar of the Museum of Fine Arts receives additional salary of from $300 to $400.

Even so, who refuse more money, especially city money? There's what worries the political mind.

Ichabod Leinglass, the Sage of Pig Alley, who never was known to refuse anything, expressed himself today thus:

"The guy you chirp won't let you inside his Dail. And where do rouse find him? In de nu-nee-on. I'll say dats de place for him."

hand from day to day; and I trust that it will very soon be possible for me to do so.

But there are several questions pressing for consideration, to which I feel that I may, and indeed must, even now direct your attention, if only in general terms. In speaking of them I shall, I dare say, be doing little more than speak your own thoughts. I hope that I shall speak your own judgment also.

The question which stands at the front of all others in every country amidst the present great awakening is the question of labor; and perhaps I can speak of it with as great advantage while engrossed in the consideration of interests which affect all countries alike as I could at home amongst the interests which naturally most affect my thought, because they are the interests of our own people.

By the question of labor I do not mean the question of efficient industrial production, the question of how labor is to be obtained and made effective in the great process of sustaining populations and winning success amidst commercial and industrial rivalries.

I mean that much greater and more vital question, which are the men and women who do the daily labor of the world to obtain progressive improvement in the conditions of their labor, to be made happier, and to be served better by the communities and the industries which their labor sustains and advances? How are they to be given their right advantage as citizens and human beings?

We cannot go any further in our present direction. We have already gone too far. We cannot live our right life as a nation or achieve our proper success as an industrial community if capital and labor are to continue to be antagonistic instead of being partners, if they are to continue to distrust one another and contrive how they can get the better of one another; or, what perhaps amounts to the same thing, calculate by what form and degree of coercion they can manage to extort on the one hand work enough to make enterprise profitable, on the other justice and fair treatment enough to make life tolerable. That hard road has turned out a blind alley. It is no thoroughfare to real prosperity. We must find another, leading in another direction and to a very different destination. It must lead not merely to accommodation, but also to a genuine partnership based upon a real community of interest and participation in control.

IN HANDS OF STATES.

There is now in fact a real community of interest between capital and labor, but it has never been made evident in action. It can be made operative and manifest only in a new organization of industry. The action of our business men and the sound practical sense of our workers can certainly work such a partnership out when once they realise what it is that they seek and sincerely adopt a common purpose with regard to it.

Labor legislation lies, of course, chiefly with the States; but the new spirit and method of organization which must be affected are not to be brought about by legislation so much as about by the common council and cooperation of capitalist, manager, and workman. Legislation can go only a very little way in commanding what shall be done. The organization of industry is a matter of corporate and individual initiative and of practical business arrangement. Those who have the ability to devise new relationships between capital and labor can usually find a way to bring it into effect; and perhaps Federal legislation can help more than State legislation could.

The one object of all reform in this sphere is that matter must be the genuine democratization of industry, based upon a full recognition of the right of those who work, in whatever rank, to participate in some organic way in every decision which directly affects their welfare or the part they are to play in industry. Some progressive legislation is practicable.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY.

The Congress has already taken the way to one reform which we should be world-wide, by establishing the eight-hour day as the standard day in every field of labor over which it can exercise control. It has sought to find a way to prevent child labor, as well will, I hope, and believe, permanently find it. It has served the whole country by leading the way in developing the means of preserving and safeguarding life and health in dangerous industries.

It can now help in the difficult task of giving a new form and spirit to industrial organization by co-ordinating the several agencies of conciliation and adjustment which have been brought into existence by the difficulties and mistaken policies of the present management of industry, and by setting up and developing new Federal agencies of advice and information which may serve as a clearing house for the best experiments and the best thought on this great matter, upon which every thinking man must be aware that the future development of society directly depends.

Agencies of international counsel and suggestion are presently to be created in connection with the league of nations in this very field; but it is national action and the enlightened policy of individuals, corporations, and societies within each nation that must bring about the actual reforms. The members of the committees on labor in the two Houses will hardly need suggestions from me as to what means they shall seek to make the Federal government the agent of the whole nation in pointing out, and if need be, in guiding the process of reorganization and reform.

AID FOR SOLDIERS.

I am sure that it is not necessary for me to remind you that there is one immediate and very practical question of labor that we should consider in the most liberal spirit. We must see to it that our returning soldiers are assisted in every practicable way to find the places for which they are fitted in the daily work of the country. This can be done by developing and maintaining upon an adequate scale the admirable organization created by the Department of Labor for placing men seeking work; and it can also be done, in at least one very great field, by creating new opportunity for individual enterprise.

The Secretary of the Interior has pointed out the way by which returning soldiers may be helped to find and take up land in the hitherto undeveloped regions of the country which the Federal government has already prepared or can readily prepare for cultivation and also on many of the cut-over or neglected areas which lie within the limits of the older States; and I once more take the liberty of recommending very urgently that his plans shall receive the immediate and substantial support of the Congress.

Peculiar and very stimulating conditions await our commerce and industrial enterprise in the immediate future. Unusual opportunities will presently present themselves for our merchants and producers in foreign markets, and new fields for profitable investment will be opened to our free capital. But it is not only of that that I am thinking; it is not chiefly of that that I am thinking. Many great industries prostrated by the war wait to be rehabilitated, in many parts of the world what will be lacking is not brains or willing hands or organizing capacity or experienced skill, but machinery and raw materials and capital.

PROSPERITY UNIVERSAL.

I believe that our business men, our merchants, our manufacturers and our capitalists will have the vision to see that prosperity in one part of the world ministers to prosperity everywhere; that there is in a very true sense a solidarity of interest throughout the world of enterprise, and that our dealings with the countries that have need of our products and our money will teach them to deem us their best friends and friends whose necessities we seek in the right way to serve.

Our new merchant ships, which have in some quarters been feared as destructive rivals, may prove helpful rivals, rather, and common servants, very much needed and very welcome. Our great shipyards, new and old, will be so open to the world, that they will prove immensely serviceable to every maritime people in restoring, much more rapidly than would otherwise have been possible the tonnage wantonly destroyed in the war.

I have only to suggest that there are many points at which we can facilitate American enterprise in foreign trade by opportune legislation and make it easy for American merchants to go where they will be welcomed as friends, rather than as dreaded antagonists.

America has a great and honorable service to perform in bringing the commercial and industrial undertakings of the world back to their old scope and swing again, and putting a solid structure of credit under them. All our legislation should be friendly to such plans and purposes.

TAXATION LEGISLATION.

And credit and enterprise alike will be quickened by timely and helpful legislation with regard to taxation. I hope that the Congress will find it possible to undertake an early reconsideration of Federal taxes, in order to make our system of taxation more simple and easy of administration and the taxes themselves as little burdensome as they can be made and yet suffice to support the government and meet all its obligations.

The figures to which those obligations have arisen are very great indeed, but they are not so great as to make it difficult for the nation to meet them, and meet them, perhaps, in a single generation, by taxes which will neither crush nor discourage. These are not so great as they seem, not so great as the immense sums we have had to borrow, added to the immense sums we have had to raise by taxation, would seem to indicate; for a very large proportion of those sums were raised in order that they might be loaned to the governments with which we were associated in the war, and those loans will, of course, constitute assets, not liabilities, and will not have to be taken care of by our taxpayers.

The main thing that we shall have to care for is that our taxation shall rest as lightly as possible on the productive resources of the country, that its rates shall be stable, and that it shall be constant in its revenue yielding power. We have found the main sources from which it must be drawn. I take it for granted that its mainstays will henceforth be the income tax, the excess profits tax, and the estate tax. All these can be so adjusted to yield constant and adequate returns and yet not constitute a too grievous burden on the taxpayer.

REVISION PROVIDED FOR.

A revision of the income tax has already been provided for by the act of 1918, but I think you will find that further changes can be made to advantage both in the rates of the tax and in the method of its collection. The excess profits tax need not long be maintained at the rates which were necessary while the enormous expenses of the war had to be borne, but it should be made the basis of a permanent system which will reach undue profits without discouraging the enterprise and activity of our business men. The tax on inheritances ought, no doubt, to be reconsidered in its relation to the fiscal systems of the several States, but it certainly ought to remain a permanent part of the fiscal system of the Federal government also.

Many of the minor taxes provided for in the revenue legislation of 1917 and 1918, though no doubt made necessary by the pressing necessities of the war time, can hardly find sufficient justification under the easier circumstances of peace, and can now happily be got rid of. Among these, I hope you will agree, are the excises upon various manufacturers and the taxes upon retail sales. They are unequal in the incidence on different industries and on different individuals. Their collection is difficult and expensive. Those which are levied upon articles sold at retail are largely evaded by the readjustment of retail prices.

INDIRECT TAXES.

On the other hand, I should assume that it is expedient to maintain a considerable range of indirect taxes; and the fact that alcoholic liquors will presently no longer afford a source of revenue by taxation makes it the more necessary that the field should be carefully restudied in order that equivalent sources of revenue may be found which it will be legitimate, and not burdensome, to draw upon. But you have at hand in the Treasury Department many experts who can advise you upon the matters much better than I can. I can only suggest the lines of a permanent and workable system, and the placing of the taxes where they will least hamper the life of the people.

There is, fortunately, no occasion for undertaking in the immediate future any general revision of our system of import duties. No serious danger of foreign competition now threatens American industries. Our country has emerged from the war less disturbed and less weakened than any of the European countries which are our competitors in manufacture. Their industrial establishments have been subjected to greater strain than ours, their labor force to a more serious disorganization, and this is clearly not the time to seek an organized advantage. The work of mere reconstruction will, I am afraid, tax the capacity and the resources of their people for years to come.

So far from there being any danger or need of accentuated foreign competition, it is likely that the conditions for the next few years will greatly facilitate the marketing of American manufactures abroad. Least of all should we depart from the policy adopted in the tariff act of 1913, of permitting the free entry into the United States of the raw materials needed to supplement and enrich our own abundant supplies.

TARIFF NEEDS ATTENTION.

Nevertheless, there are parts of tariff system which need prompt attention. The experiences of the war have made it plain that in some cases too great reliance on foreign supply is dangerous, and that in determining certain parts of our tariff policy domestic considerations must be borne in mind which are political as well as economic. Among the industries which special consideration should be given is that of the manufacture of dyestuffs and related chemicals. Our complete dependence upon Germany for these supplies before the war made the interruption of trade a cause of exceptional economic disturbance.

The close relation between the manufacture of dyestuffs, on the one hand, and of explosives and poisonous gases, on the other, moreover, has given the industry an exceptional significance and value. Although the United States will gladly and unhesitatingly join in the program of international disarmament, it will nevertheless be a policy of obvious prudence to make certain of the successful maintenance of many strong and well-equipped chemical plants. The German chemical industry, with which we will be brought into competition, was, and may well be again, a thoroughly knit monopoly capable of executing a competition of a peculiarly insidious and dangerous kind.

The United States should, moreover, have the means of properly protecting itself whenever our trade is discriminated against by foreign nations, in order that we may be assured of that equality of treatment which we hope to accord and to promote the world over. Our tariff laws as they now stand provide no weapon of retaliation in case other governments should enact legislation unequal in its bearing upon the products as compared with the products of other countries.

RETALIATION PLANS.

Though we are as far as possible from desiring to enter upon any course of retaliation, we must frankly face the fact that hostile legislation by other nations is not beyond the range of possibility, and that it may have to be met by retaliatory legislation.

This subject has, fortunately, been exhaustively investigated by the United States Tariff Commission. A recent report of that commission has shown very clearly that we should act that we ought to have the instruments necessary for the assurance of equal and equitable treatment. The attention of the Congress has been called to this matter on past occasions, and the past measures which are now recommended by the Tariff Commission are substantially the same that have been suggested by previous administrations. I recommend that this phase of the tariff question receive the early attention of the Congress.

Will you not permit me, turning from these matters, to speak once more and very earnestly of the proposed amendment to the Constitution which would extend the suffrage to women and which passed the House of Representatives at the last session of Congress. It seems to me that every consideration of justice and of public advantage calls for the immediate adoption of that amendment and its submission forthwith to the Legislatures of the several States.

SUFFRAGE QUESTION.

Throughout all the world this long delayed extension of the suffrage is looked for: in the United States longer, I believe, than anywhere else, the necessity for it, and the immense advantage of it to the national life, has been urged and debated, by women and men who saw the need for it and urged the policy of it when it required much courage to be so much before-hand with the common conviction; and I, for one, covet for our country the distinction of being among the first to act in a great reform.

The telegraph and telephone lines will of course be returned to their owners so soon as their transfer can be effected without administrative confusion. So much, that is, as the change can be made with least inconvenience to the public and to the owners themselves. The railroads will be handed over to their owners at the end of the calendar year; if I were in immediate contact with the administrative questions which must govern the transfer of the telegraph and telephone lines, I could name the exact date for their return also.

Until I am in direct contact with the practical questions involved I can only suggest that in the case of the telegraphs and telephones, as in the case of the railroads, it is clearly desirable in the public interest that some legislation should be considered which may lead to the making of those indispensable instrumentalities of our modern life a uniform and co-ordinated system which will afford those who use them as complete and certain means of communication with all parts of the country as has now been afforded by the postal system of the government, and at rates as uniform and intelligible. Expert advice is, of course, available in this very practical matter, and the public interest is manifest.

NOT NATIONAL SYSTEM.

Neither the telegraph nor the telephone service of the country can be said to be in any sense a national system.

There are many confusions and inconsistencies of rates. The science of the means by which communication by such instrumentalities could be rendered more thorough and satisfactory than it has been made full use of. An exhaustive study of the whole question of electrical communication and of the means by which the central authority can be made to be used to unify and improve it, if undertaken, by the appropriate committees of the Congress, would certainly result, indirectly, even if not directly, in a great public benefit.

The demobilization of the military forces of the country has progressed to such a point that it seems to me entirely safe now to remove the ban upon the manufacture and sale of wines and beers, but I am advised that without further legislation I have not the legal authority to remove the present restrictions. I, therefore, recommend that the act approved November 21, 1918, entitled "an act to enable the Secretary of Agriculture to carry out, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, the purposes of an act entitled 'an act to provide further for the national security and defense by stimulating agriculture and facilitating the distribution of agricultural products' and for other purposes," be repealed insofar as it applies to wines and beers.

I sincerely trust that I shall be very soon at my post in Washington again to report upon the matters which made my presence at the peace table apparently imperative, and to put myself at the service of the Congress in every matter of administration or counsel that may seem to demand executive action or advice.

DOUSE DENIES EVER STRIKING WIFE, BUT SAYS HE BROKE MIRRORS

GAVE HER MONEY AS WANTED

There was never any trouble in the Douse family until the wife, Lillian A., returned from a visit to South Bend, Ind., to Arthur R. Douse, the husband, told today in the Superior Divorce Session, in the contested divorce case.

He never struck her, never threw her to the floor or did anything to cause her to fear him, according to the story he told Judge Binn.

When she was ill, he cared for her, and gave her money to go on trips for the sake of her health. He did break two mirrors in the bedroom, tipped over chairs, broke china in the kitchen and dining room, he said, but he did this all "for a purpose." He did this, he said, in her absence, when she had gone out in the face of his protest.

Cross-examination of Mrs. Douse was resumed by Attorney Joseph F. O'Connell.

Q—Did you tell your older boy that you had met a "regular fellow" in Indiana, that you were going to get rid of your husband and marry him? A—No, sir.

Q—How many of these so-called "Moore pictures" that you referred to were in your house? A—Six or eight.

Mr. Douse tore them into small pieces and I mended them again. They were all members of my family.

DR. GLEASON TESTIFIES.

Dr. Edward F. Gleason, a practicing physician, told of treating Mrs. Douse for bruises on her leg, and that he also treated her for marks on her throat, both in 1918. He also testified to treating her for pneumonia, bronchial trouble and various other ailments. "Her husband seemed most anxious about her. He always wanted me to do all I could for his wife, and was willing to pay for everything for her, the witness said.

Q—Did you hear Mrs. Douse tell Mrs. Fisher over the telephone that as she (Mrs. Fisher) had told on her, she (Mrs. Douse) would tell on her? A—She said they had everything against her. She did not state that she was talking to Mrs. Fisher.

The witness denied that he had ever told Mr. Douse anything of the conversations, other than that he believed his wife would be willing to compromise the suit.

John R. Egan, a Dorchester plasterer, testified to seeing broken dishes and other articles on the floor of the Douse home in Virginia street when he went there in 1917.

Mrs. Mary E. Elliott of Somerville, a former Dorchester neighbor when the Douse family lived in Dunlap street, told of seeing the husband strike his wife in the face as the two women returned from the movies at 7:30 o'clock one night.

NEVER ATE IN DOUSE HOME.

The witness denied emphatically that she ever ate a meal in the Douse home or that she ever sat at a table except to play a game of whist. Mr. Douse never ordered her from the house, she said. Under redirect examination by Attorney Egan:

Q—What did you ever see Mr. Douse doing in his home? A—Gambling. I saw him drink whiskey and beer on the table, and three other men were there.

Arthur R. Douse next took the stand. He said that he had been a builder in Dorchester for the past twelve years. He said that he married Lillian A. Moore in Seattle and that he had always tried to provide her with everything she wanted in her home.

Q—Did you ever deny her anything she wanted? A.—Nothing I was able to do.

Witness told of his care of Mrs. Douse during her illness and said that when the doctor ordered her to ... mountains he took her to Saranac Lake. From there he went to her home in Rockville, Ind., where she remained from November until March.

The Man Who Loved Good Desserts

"There goes Edith Bradford," said Mrs. Winton as she and her husband were sitting on the porch swing one afternoon. "She and Bob certainly seem happy together."

"I am sure they are," answered Mrs. Winton, "and that reminds me of something funny that happened before they were married. One day Edith came to me in the greatest excitement.

"'What am I going to do!' she exclaimed tragically. "Bob's mother has just told me he could live on cornstarch pudding and bland soup, and I simply cannot make either one.'

She was so serious about it, it was laughable.

"'Never mind,' I reassured her. 'There is Pudding.'

"'Puddine?' she questioned. 'What is it?'

"'A most wonderful dessert—rich and creamy and luscious.'

"'How do you make it?' said Edith.

"'Why, you just add sugar and milk, either fresh or condensed, and boil it for three minutes.

"'Then, if it comes out right, after it's cool, a firm, creamy mold of luscious, rich dessert.'

"'Well, I'm certainly glad to know it,' sighed Edith, 'Bob's mother is such a wonderful cook.'

"I know you'll both like Puddine,' I said, 'and it comes in any number of flavors—chocolate, rose vanilla, almond, spice and several others. And then you can make rich, creamy pie and cake fillings with Puddine, and you can even make ice cream with it.'

"'I suppose you'll finish, however,' said Edith, 'by telling me it's expensive and so rich one can't eat much of it anyhow.'

"I told her that a 15c box served 15 people, and was very wholesome.

"Shortly after she was married I was talking to her again. 'Oh, Mrs. Winton,' she said, 'how can I ever thank you? Puddine is wonderful. Bob raves about my desserts, and Puddine has done it all.'

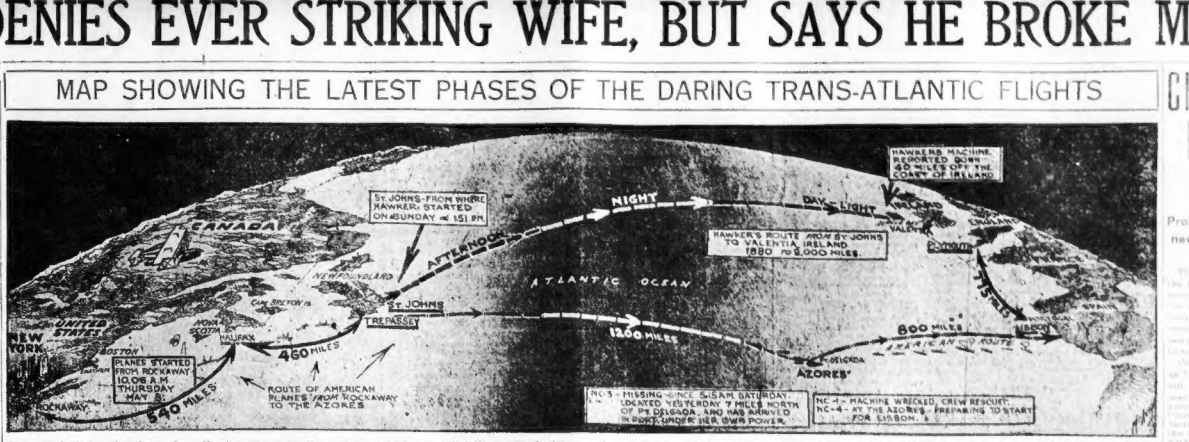
MAP SHOWING THE LATEST PHASES OF THE DARING TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHTS



The map indicates the place where Hawker, the Australian aviator, was last unofficially reported after an all night flight over the ocean; and where the missing NC-3 finally appeared out of the haze of mystery, only seven miles from its goal in the Azores. Route to be taken by NC-4 to complete its history-making aerial journey to Europe is also shown.

Vanderlip Returns From Europe, Optimistic

New York, May 20.—"I was never more optimistic in my life."

These are Frank A. Vanderlip's words on his return from a protracted visit to Europe, where he has been studying the problem of reconstruction from the financial standpoint. The president of the National City Bank added:

"That is my feeling, especially if America discharges and accepts her full responsibility in reconstruction as she did in the war.

"The situation in Europe is a question of psychology. America should view Europe as a unit in this problem of reconstruction, so that plague spots will not be developed. It requires comprehensive treatment."

COL. GUTHRIE COMING FOR CELEBRATION

Plans Complete for Commemoration of Late Queen Victoria's Centenary Saturday

Plans have been completed for the Empire Day festival and pageant to be held in Mechanics Building on Saturday night in commemoration of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria.

The affair will be participated in by all the British and Canadian societies of Greater Boston. Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters have accepted invitations to be present and extend a welcome to Lieutenant-Colonel Percy A. Guthrie, the famous fighting commander of the Kilties that were organized in Boston, and on the stage besides the Governor and Mayor will be the consuls of the allied nations.

Colonel Guthrie will arrive in Boston on Thursday night at 9:25 o'clock, and will be met at the station by his old Kilties band, the band of the Highland Dress Association, the bands of the British Military and Naval Federations, and delegations from the various British and Canadian societies. Colonel Guthrie will be accompanied by his wife and two children. They will be escorted from the North Station via the principal streets in the business section to the Parker House, where Colonel Guthrie and his family will be during his stay.

The festival is to be one of the most elaborate affairs ever presented by British and Canadian societies in Boston. The doors of Mechanics Hall will open at 6:30, and at 7 o'clock the entertainment will begin. The program will include English folk dances, Highland dancing, Welsh singing by a troop of forty Welsh singers, the trooping of the colors by soldiers of the allied nations, and a pageant, in which England, Scotland, Wales, Canada and the United States will be represented. During the evening, which will close with two or three hours of dancing, Colonel Guthrie will make the first speech that he has delivered since he returned from service with the army of occupation in Germany.

WILLIAM F. WHARTON, NOTED LAWYER, DEAD

William F. Wharton, a noted Boston lawyer, of No. 50 State street, was found dead in his bed today at his home, No. 169 Beacon street. Mr. Wharton left a wife, Susan (Lay) Wharton, and two children, Captain Philip Wharton, now overseas, and a daughter, Mrs. Henry St. John Smith, of Exeter street. At the time of his death he was planning to remove to his Summer place at Groton.

William Fisher Wharton was born in Jamaica Plain, June 28, 1847, the son of William Craig Wharton. He married twice, first to Fanny Pickman of Boston on October 21, 1873; second time to Susan Carberry Lay of Washington, on February 21, 1877. From 1885 to 1888 he was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives. In 1889-93 he was assistant Secretary of State for the United States.

PUBLISHER CALL, ONCE OF BOSTON, IS DEAD

New York, May 20.—Edward Payson Call, well-known newspaper man and publisher, died at his home here. Mr. Call was business manager of the Journal of Commerce. Prior to coming to New York as publisher of the Evening Post, he was connected with several Boston papers, including the Herald, and later was publisher of the Boston Advertiser.

6 DIVISIONS TO SAIL FOR HOME IN JUNE

Washington, May 20.—General Pershing has notified the War Department that the 4th, 5th, 6th and 7th regular divisions have been released from the American Expeditionary Forces for return home, and that they will sail from France some time in June. During the same month the 81st and 90th Divisions will leave France for the United States.

HOW TO PLAY FIRST BASE.

"The proper position is for the baseman to stand with his feet set slightly apart, a foot or less in front of the inside corner of the base but not touching the bag at all." A paragraph from Hugh S. Fullerton's 600 Lessons on Baseball beginning Monday, May 26, in the Boston American.

CONGRESS GETS MESSAGE OF PRESIDENT

First Time Wilson Has Not Personally Presented Views to Legislators

will be consummated. Dealing with the necessity for national action to bring about an enlightened labor policy, the President observes:

"Agencies of international counsel and suggestion are presently to be created in connection with the League of Nations in this very field; but it is national action that must bring about the actual reforms."

REPEAL OF TAX ON SALES.

Recommending the repeal of the taxes upon retail sales, the President pointed out that they are "unequal in incidence" on industries and individuals and that their collection is difficult and expensive. While they were justified by the pressing war-time necessities, he observed, "they can scarcely find sufficient justification under the easier circumstances of peace."

In urging certain tariff changes, the President points out the close relation that has existed between the manufacturers of dye-stuffs on the one hand, and of explosives and poisonous gases on the other. He then says:

"Although the United States will gladly and unhesitatingly join in the program of international disarmament, it will, nevertheless, be a policy of obvious prudence to make certain of the successful maintenance of many strong and well equipped chemical plants.

"The German chemical industry, with which we will be brought into competition, was and may well be again a thoroughly knit monopoly capable of exercising a competition of a peculiarly insidious and dangerous kind."

MISS WIDENER IN LENOX FOR HEALTH

Lenox, May 20.—Throat affection, not romantic weakness is the reason of the visit of Miss Fifi Widener, daughter of Mrs. Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, to Lenox, according to Mrs. Widener, who terms absurd the rumors that her daughter had been brought here to keep her away from a Philadelphia man who wanted to marry her and whom she wished to wed.

The girl is under the care of Dr. Edward P. Hale of this town. She was ordered to Palm Beach by a Philadelphia physician, Mrs. Widener says, and stayed there three weeks, returning home and then coming to Lenox today. Her health has much improved here.

"It is absurd to think there is any romance connected with my daughter, or that I have brought her here to keep her away from any man. She is too young to think of marriage and is simply not in good health," said Mrs. Widener.

HARVARD SENIORS TO PICNIC IN OVERALLS

The Harvard senior picnic will be held on Friday, the men assembling on Widener steps at 9, the uniform of the day being overalls. Caps, tin cups, and a brass band will be provided. The class will go down the harbor.

Navy Flight Maps Show Return Trip Is Planned

By Universal Service.

Trepassey, N. F., May 20.

Documents indicating that the Atlantic flight will be made a round trip have been seen by the Universal Service correspondent.

Proof positive that a return flight is at least in contemplation by the Navy Department experts is found in the flight maps, which reveal a carefully plotted course from Plymouth to Blanket Bay, north of Valentia, on the southwest coast of Ireland.

The fact that the entire squad of aviation mechanics sailed for Plymouth on the Aroostook yesterday to overhaul the seaplanes is considered significant.

If the return is made by air the homing planes will not head for Newfoundland, on account of the fog, but the West Indies my be selected as the first stop, with Rockaway as the terminus.

RELIGION AIDED BY WAR, SAYS DR. S. A. ELIOT

Downfall of Bigotry Prophesied in Address to Unitarians

Rev. Samuel A. Eliot, LL.D., president of the American Unitarian Association, at its ninety-fourth annual meeting today in Tremont Temple told a large audience what the world war had accomplished in breaking up some of the religious distinctions and prophesied still further the downfall of bigotry.

"Twenty per cent. of our ministers have seen war service and one minister has paid the extreme sacrifice," he continued. "The war has made us see the need of vital and real religion. We are finding now, if never before, that the world is worth living in.

"Men are going to think nationally after this war and not in any narrow groove. The old world has been shattered. Yet religion must not depend upon mere intellectualism. Religion for most of us had unwarrantable softness and ease about it. We want a religion that does things. In all the periods of reconstruction after this war this thought must gain sway.

MORALS AND TRUE RELIGION.

"The world of the world's life lies in the realm of morals and true religion. To clarify our thinking there must be no individual selfishness or greed of possession. We are to look at Emerson, who said, 'As goes America, so goes the world.'

"So I say, as goes liberal Christianity so goes the world of religious life after this terrible war."

Rev. Miles Hanson of Roxbury, speaking on "Mobilizing the World Forces," said: "The old theology has gone. It has been pushed out by the change of events. Today we want a wider religious life in the emotions as well as of the Intellect."

To develop team play, Rev. Minot Simons of Cleveland urged emphasis upon the simple principles of religion which have come through in the great emergency of the war. "What do people want?" he asked. "They want a new theory of life, a new and religious outlook that will give them confidence and strength."

Miss Minnie Packard enlisted the aid of the young people.

REPORT TELLS PROGRESS.

Louis C. Cornish, secretary of the association, read his report in which he showed the steady growth of Unitarianism in various parts of the country.

"Our churches are better off today than a year ago," he declared. "There are signs of new strength in new places that have been weak."

Former President William H. Taft and the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, pastor of the Arlington Street Church, were appointed a committee to take greetings of the association to the Hebrew Congress now in session in the city.

HARRISON AND HIS BRIDE AT LENOX

Philippine Governor and Girl Wife on Brief Honeymoon in the Berkshires

Lenox, May 20.—Francis Burton Harrison, Governor-General of the Philippines, and his bride, formerly Miss Elizabeth Wrentmore, are at the Curtis Hotel here. They arrived for a short stay during their honeymoon, prior to sailing for Manila June 12.

They were married in Chicago May 15 after a country-wide courtship that attracted much attention. The cause of the objection of the girl's parents to the match, Mrs. Wrentmore is only eighteen, a former student at the University of California. Governor-General Harrison is forty-five, and had been married twice previously.

His boyhood days were spent in Lenox, where he will renew old associations. His first wife, who was Miss Mary Crocker of San Francisco, spent part of her young womanhood here. She died in 1905. Governor-General Harrison's marriage to Miss Wrentmore took place on the day his decree from the second Mrs. Harrison became absolute.

They will stay here until about June 5, and will sail from New York.

FLIER FOLLOWS CHUM IN AIRPLANE DEATH

Mrs. Dean E. Lochman of Salem today received a telegram from the Navy Department informing her of the death of her son, Lieutenant J. G. Dean E. Lochman at Pensacola, which stated that the young man, who was in the aviation service, was killed in an airplane accident last Saturday, his chum, Ensign F. M. Fowler, was killed in a similar accident.

The two men saw service on the Mexican border together as members of the 2d Corps Cadets Field Artillery. Later Lochman went into aviation, and flew in England and Scotland. He was 22 years old and married last January. Miss Evelyn Hawker, also of Salem. She is in Panama.

PROFESSIONAL WOMEN'S CLUB'S FINAL LUNCHEON

The Professional Women's Club will hold the final luncheon of the season Thursday, May 22, at 12:30 o'clock. The only guest will be Frank Palmer Sibley, the war correspondent. Mr. Sibley will tell the club members some of his experiences.

WEST POINT COURSE REDUCED TO 3 YEARS

Washington, May 20.—The course at West Point has been reduced to three years. Secretary of War Baker approved the recommendations of the general staff that the course be shortened, beginning with the next class. Entrance requirements will not be changed immediately.

START DRIVE TO BAR 4 PER CENT. BEER BILL

Anti-Saloon Forces With Noted Counsel Oppose Admitting A. F. of L. Measure

With the general counsel and other "big guns" of the anti-saloon element in attendance, the combined Prohibition forces of the State today began their drive against the 4 per cent. beer and six bill.

The hearing against admission of the A. F. of L. attempt to legalize the 4 per cent. brew was begun this afternoon before the House Committee on Rules.

Attorney Orville S. Poland conducted the hearing for the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League and presented as the big cannon of the opposition movement Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel for the Anti-Saloon League and general counsel for national prohibition. Mr. Wheeler was one of the comparatively small group of men at Washington who composed the "battering ram" which finally prevailed upon Congress to submit the national prohibition amendment to the States for ratification or rejection.

Charles Gardner, former master of the State Grange, and Mrs. Ella F. Gleason of the Massachusetts Women's Christian Temperance Union, were the other principal speakers, although Mr. Poland introduced some witnesses to combat the A. F. of L. statement that "the soldiers are opposed to prohibition."

The case of the proponents has closed. They presented petitions signed by 120,000 citizens of the State, including 17,000 returned soldiers, who say they want their "glass of beer."

The question is as to whether the 4 per cent beer and six bill shall be admitted for consideration by the Legislature. Two-thirds vote in both House and Senate is necessary to suspend the rules in order for admission. The labor people tactfully refused to ask for suspension, but voted upon there again. Meanwhile the friends of the measure are busily at work.

ASKS STATE TO SAVE JEWS IN POLAND

Four million Jews in Poland are face to face with organized religious persecution, and the Massachusetts Zionist Council has issued a call to all Jewish organizations to help the stricken people. The Union protest in behalf of the Polish Jews, which was instituted by the Massachusetts House of Representatives hereby expresses its sympathy with the Jews in their long period of oppression in the United States to take such action as may be necessary to secure the rights of the Jews of Poland in the fulfillment of the newly created Polish state, a country which owes its existence to Jewish and dependent nations in the allies and to the United States, which country the Jews have also contributed their full share of service and sacrifice, and it is the sense of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts that Poland, which has suffered centuries from oppression, will not herself become an oppressor."

BISHOP GREER OF NEW YORK DIES AFTER OPERATION

New York, May 20.—The Right Rev. David H. Greer, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New York, is dead here as the result of a gall stone operation for intestinal trouble which was performed May 12. He was more than 70 years old.

Dr. Greer was bishop of the Episcopal diocese of New York for eleven years. He ranked among the foremost preachers and ecclesiastical orators of New York.

GERMAN PRINCES PLOT TO RESTORE EX-KAISER

By Exclusive Cable to the International News Service From II Secolo, Milan.

Lugano, Switzerland, May 20.—Two German princes and one leading German aristocrat are here planning a coup d'etat by which they hope to restore the Kaiser to the throne within two months after peace is signed.

Daniels Says Naval Officers Must All "Train Down"

Washington, May 20.—Naval officers must exercise. The fiat has gone forth, issued by Secretary Daniels, requiring each officer to devote one-half day each week, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, to regular and systematic physical development.

The new order also provides that a medical board shall examine all officers each January to see if they have the ability to perform their duties.

The exercise order can be followed by those desirous of doing duty, together with those on active duty. But now about submarine officers, commanders of submarine chasers and destroyers who haven't any room?

CHAMBER MEN BATTLE WITH BALLOTS

Prolonged Factional Fight Renewed at Annual Meeting and Election of Directors

FAKE ASPIRIN WAS TALCUM

I want "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" with the "Bayer Cross"—Genuine!—Safe!

"You can't hand me any substitute for the true, genuine 'Bayer Tablets of Aspirin'—proved safe by millions."

"Man alive! Haven't you heard? A Brooklyn fraud is in jail for flooding the country with millions of counterfeit tablets. He labeled them 'Aspirin,' but they were 'talcum powder.'"

Be sure your druggist gives you "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" in a Bayer package—not in a pill box. Take them as directed, without fear, for headache, rheumatism, lumbago, neuralgia, earache, toothache, neuritis, colds, grippe, influenza colds, or almost any pain or ache in face, neck, limbs or body.

Proper and safe dosage in each genuine "Bayer package."

Look for the safety "Bayer Cross" both on package and on tablets.

Boxes of 12 tablets—bottles of 24 and bottles of 100. Also capsules.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

BOSTON DRIVE FOR 'SALLIES' IS LAGGING

Must Raise $50,000 Daily to Win; Rally at Liberty Hall

Guerre; Sergeant Thomas Wilson, Cadet H. J. Cannon of the Naval Aviation Forces, Captain H. H. Choate of the 102d Field Artillery, and Machanist's Mate J. P. Quinlan. Music was furnished by a band from the Navy Yard. Although no collection was taken, hundreds of the thousands present signed pledge cards.

Leaders in the drive pointed out that if Boston is to "keep her face" among other New England communities she must do better than the first day's receipts indicate. Many smaller places are already "over the top" on their way toward the New England quota of $7,800,000.

SEVERAL TOWNS GO "OVER."

Portsmouth, N. H., with a quota of $6,500, passed that amount by $400 on the first day and then increased its own quota to $10,000 and announced that it meant to secure $15,000. Southboro collected the $400 allotted to it within an hour and is still working. Marblehead, with $1,500, and Gloucester, with $6,000, have passed their quotas.

Marlboro, with a quota of $6,000 raised $1,500 the first three hours of the campaign. New Bedford, with a quota of $11,500, started with a spurt of $5,410.

Doughnuts, like those the intrepid "lassies" fried and distributed to soldiers on the front line during the war, will be given out at the Wilbur Theatre tonight, where Nora Bayes is to sing "My Doughnut Girl." The air will be dark with dozens of doughnuts, which the singer will throw into the audience; but lest women fear for their Spring finery, it is announced that each doughnut will be encased in an envelope marked "Doughnuts that made the doughboy love the Salvation Army."

"DAYS PAY FOR SALLIES."

Local industries were organizing today to concentrate work on the campaign. These include the Western Union employes, those of the Boston Elevated, the Edison Company, the several railroads and the big department stores. Many employes announced their intention to give a day's pay, and adopted the slogan: "A day's pay for the Sallies." This plan is being carried out all over New England.

Men of the Yankee Division are aiding in the drive, and not only aiding but contributing. A check for $17.27 was received from wounded soldiers at the Parker Hill Hospital, and many other wounded soldiers have given their bit.

Many of the contributions are accompanied by interesting letters. One such was received from Guy P. Gannett, a Maine Senator, who described his experience watching the "Sally" workers care for the boys overseas. He writes:

REAL HOME AT THE FRONT.

"I shall never forget the Salvation Army hut I went into in a small town in France on a cold November day. white tired and homesick, and there met a typical American mother supplying the wants of thousands of soldiers, with no one to help her except her young daughter.

"It was a delight to watch this mother frying thousands of doughnuts, cooking the meals, washing the dishes, waiting upon innumerable men, with a cheery word of greeting and motherly advice for all, and still carrying on a conversation with the rest of us.

"It was my privilege to sit in this kitchen and watch the most efficient, kind Salvation Army mother at work, and I certainly did not want to leave the hospitable place.

"It is needless to say that I am now, as I have always been, a great admirer of the Salvation Army."

Many were the touching instances of personal sacrifice made by humble contributors. One young girl went to the booth at Chandler & Company's presided over by Mrs. Charles H. Cole, wife of General Cole, and handed a pay envelope containing $12— her week's pay.

"But this is too much for you to give," Mrs. Cole said in kindly protest.

GIRL GIVES WEEK'S PAY.

"Indeed, no," came the emphatic response. "I had a brother in France, a soldier in your husband's brigade. He was ill and hungry and the Salvation Army took care of him. He wrote me about it; told me if ever I had an opportunity to help the Salvation Army to do it, remembering what the Salvation Army had done for him. So you must take this for the army. It isn't much—one week's pay. But I never could be happy if I didn't give it."

Mrs. Cole accepted the contribution. "And the name?" she asked.

"No name," said the girl. "In memory of a brother the army helped."

Two Boston Boys Held in New York for Liquor Sales

New York, May 20.—Two Boston youths, who said they had been here five weeks, and were schooled with other boys to sell whiskey to sailors in uniform, were found guilty and held for sentence on Thursday after a probation officer has looked them over.

The youths describe themselves as James Cronan, No. 12 Monroe street, Boston, and Joseph McCarthy, No. 179 Charles street, Boston.

Each had several flasks when arrested and searched.

They said a man had sent them out to peddle the stuff at $2 a flask to soldiers and sailors. They denied having made any sales.

LAWRENCE MILL WORKERS WIN INCREASE

owners and the United Textile Workers.

What the foreign speaking element of the strikers will do in accepting this increase, it was learned today, is immaterial to the mill owners who, however, expect that this element of the strikers will accept the increase and return to work as they asked for but an increase of 12½ per cent. originally.

The notices posted by the American Woolen Company today which it is confidently expected will be followed by all the other Lawrence mills read as follows:

"Owing to the marked improvement in business conditions the management of the American Woolen Company is glad to be able to announce an increase in wages to go into effect June 2. This increase will at least equal the increases granted in other textile centres."

The increases in other textile centres referred to are fifteen per cent. They were really granted by cotton manufacturers. The Boston American last Friday forecasted today's action of the American Woolen Company. The mill workers at Lawrence are elated over the favorable settlement of their long drawn out contest.

"The action of the American Woolen Company is the result of the increase recently granted by the cotton manufacturers in New Bedford, Fall River Manchester, N. H., and Salem," said a prominent official of the company today to a Boston American reporter.

"As I explained to the American last Friday, the woolen manufacturers have done in this instance what they have done in similar cases in recent years. Whenever the cotton manufacturers have increased wages in their mills the woolen manufacturers have followed suit.

"The American Woolen Company received notice yesterday from the Textile Workers' Union of the demand for an increase of 15 per cent. Other similar notifications were received by some of our mills today.

"I do not expect there will be a ripple at Lawrence next Monday morning. We are getting the employes back to work as fast as we can. We had to turn away 400 employes from the Wood mill yesterday. They were employes of the finishing and dyeing rooms but the cloth being manufactured had not reached the stage where they could work on it.

A Home Made Gray Hair Remedy

Gray, streaked or faded hair can be immediately made black, brown or light brown, which ever shade you desire, by the use of the following remedy that you can make at home:

Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 4 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Directions for mixing and use come in each box.

You need not hesitate to use Orlex, as a $100.00 gold bond comes in each box guaranteeing the user that orlex powder does not contain silver, lead, zinc, sulphur, mercury, aniline, coal-tar products or their derivatives.

It does not rub off, is not sticky or gummy and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger.—Advertisement.

A new BOOTH TARKINGTON Story

Here is a story that will make you young again

TWO inimitably funny boys—and Florence, a little girl as diabolically naughty, as fascinatingly unexpected as the immortal Penrod . . . If you want to know how a small town can be uprooted—devastated—swept from its moorings—by the simple, outspoken publication of what two small boys overheard and saw—then read Booth Tarkington's big new serial, "The Oriole," in the June Pictorial Review.

The town of North End had been going along peacefully. Neighbors gossiped, young men "paid attention" to young ladies, young ladies "encouraged" young men in the comfortable, regular way. And then, all at once—a bomb!

Those two incorrigible boys, Herbert Illingsworth Atwater, Jr., and his friend Henry Rooter, decided to start a newspaper. Then enter Florence! You will laugh as no story ever made you laugh before. It is Booth Tarkington at his best—recreating, with a master hand, the magic and sparkle of your own adventures when you were fourteen.

SCHOOL TEACHERS' salaries are a disgrace -

TEACHER, $65 a month. Colored barber, $30 a week. These two advertisements recently appeared, one below the other, in a New York newspaper. Is it any wonder that our educational system is in its present appalling condition?

In Washington, D. C., a teacher begins at $750 a year—less than $15 a week. After twenty-five years—she may rise as high as $1300!

In Chicago it is worse. The minimum salary is $600, and a teacher must work seventeen years to get $1000!

In twenty-three states the average teacher gets less than $400 a year!

A real estate agent in Washington, D. C., hung out a sign, "No apartments available for teachers." When asked about it, he said that he had no apartments on his list that teachers could afford.

A high school teacher in Illinois tried to persuade one of his boys who had left school to work in a mine, that he ought to finish his education. The boy replied, "No, sir. I am making more money without an education than you are making with one."

Read Ida Clyde Clarke's vivid, arresting article in the June Pictorial Review—an article packed with pitiful, outrageous facts about teachers' salaries. The second in Pictorial Review's great new series on American education.

WORK that women can't be hired to do!

Do you know how seven American cities are taking the drudgery out of housework?

THE biggest single industry in America—the most important—and yet the most backward—Housework!

Eighteen million women working at it!—but never any attempt to regulate hours, wages, conditions of work!

Aren't you interested in what is being done to change this? Wouldn't you like to know how the drudgery can be taken out of your housework?

The intelligent wife of a college professor decided to keep a chart of the time absolutely necessary for her to devote to her household of five members. It came to 16 hours of labor a day!

No wonder women can't be hired to do this work!

Read how New York City, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago, Philadelphia, Princeton and Montclair, N. J., are solving this problem. Read Katherine Glover's remarkable article in the June Pictorial Review.

MRS. KISSEL'S FEARS TOLD BY ALIENIST

Dr. Noyes Witness in Teacher's $20,000 Suit Against Principal

Dr. Arthur P. Noyes of the Psychopathic Hospital declared in Superior Court today that Mrs. Florence G. Fraser-Kissel told him that she was the most slandered woman in all history. She said "I don't think that in all history there is anyone so abused by slander and robbery," he testified.

Dr. Noyes was the principal witness for Mrs. Kissel before Judge Quinn and a jury in a suit against Miss Agnes G. Gilfether, principal of the Shurtleff school, South Boston, alleging that the latter caused her to be sent to the Psychopathic Hospital three times.

Dr. Noyes was on the stand all forenoon. He testified that Mrs. Kissel was committed to the hospital on Jan. 13, 1913. He said her case was diagnosed as "paraphrenic mania." He said she was discharged on Sept. 13, 1912, her condition being unimproved.

He explained that "paraphrenic mania" meant she suffered from hallucinations at hearing things and of being persecuted. He said she declared she couldn't move without knowing what she was doing.

Testifying to other statements Mrs. Kissel made in his presence he recalled her having said that "the slightest remark about me goes all over the city."

In a letter, alleged to have been written from the Psychopathic Hospital, she wrote to a friend: "I have had nothing to eat for a week. They are trying to starve me."

In another Mrs. Kissel was quoted as having referred to a Mr. Newbury as her hateful Irish guardian," and wrote: "Since I came here I have had for companions negroes, thieves and mentally sick people."

"She said her guardian wouldn't do a thing for her unless he got $100," the doctor testified.

Miss Gilfether was called to the stand to identify typewritten statements credited to Mrs. Kissel concerning her. In these statements Mrs. Kissel expressed the fear that the janitor would cause her death on account of having accused him of the theft of $775.

Another statement was that "the truant officer of this school told me that he went into Mrs. Kissel's school room and she told him that Miss Gilfether had taken away all the children from her class room in order to give an opportunity to the janitor to murder her as Miss Gilfether quoted the janitor as having said he was afraid Mrs. Kissel would put one of the little children in the furnace fire."

GEORGE WALSH in "Help, Help, Police." Cont. 9c. Mats. 5c. "Don't Change Your Husband."

"TRY a better news-stand—uptown, Gascoigne," he called to the chauffeur. "It's out today. And Mrs. Mellows will put poison in my tea if I come home without her copy."

AS the car swung into the Avenue, he turned to me with a smiling explanation. "This happens regularly on the 20th of every month. It's the one errand I am never allowed to forget.

"MY wife is reading 'The Wild Goose' or 'The Box with Broken Seals' or 'This Light Must Live' or maybe all three. She says they are, by far, the best novels she can find anywhere and she doesn't want to miss a single instalment."

"YOU see, there are always three, and sometimes four, great serial stories—best sellers—running in the magazine. As soon as one stops, a new one replaces it. Here, for example, are novels by Arthur Stringer, Gouverneur Morris, and E. Phillips Oppenheim—all at once! Rex Beach, Leroy Scott, Elinor Glyn, have all had serials in Hearst's in the past year and are now at work on new ones. Taken all in all, you will probably find in this one magazine every month a better selection of popular novels—before they become books—than in any other three magazines put together."

"I myself buy Hearst's for its short stories. I seldom read serials; but I always find a lot of corking short stories—Regular Whales!"

"BESIDES the three novels, I get in each new Hearst's six or seven splendid short stories. Take June, for example: Here is 'The 1000 Pound Punch'—the story of an office clerk who got $5,000 simply for punching his employer's nose. 'The End and the Beginning' by Cosmo Hamilton. 'Anti-Climax'—the romance of a real old-fashioned-girl moving-picture actress. 'The Infinitesimal Error' by Frederic Arnold Kummer. 'The Sinsabaugh Check'—one of the 'Crimes of the Armchair Club' series. 'Vincent from the Vicarage' by Roland Pertwee, and 'In Cahoots' by Bruno Lessing."

"THIS is just a sample. It's the same every month. Some of the story writers I remember seeing lately are Robert W. Chambers, John Galsworthy, James Oliver Curwood, Donn Byrne, Richard Washburn Child, E. Phillips Oppenheim, Arthur Somers Roche, G. K. Chesterton, W. W. Jacobs, Melville Davisson Post. All headliners, you see! Several of them, I believe, write only for Hearst's."

"MY son—he's finishing Harvard Law School—tells me he buys Hearst's every month just for its articles. If he named any other popular magazine, I'd have my doubts, but the articles in Hearst's are different."

"LET'S see what we've got here in the June number, for example: 'France and the United States,' by Henri Barbusse; 'Women and Children First' by William Allen Knight; 'The Great Unrest' by Charles Edward Russell; 'Johnnie Murphy, Newsboy' by K. C. B.; 'When Is a Nation Not a Nation?' by G. K. Chesterton; 'The Vanishing Army of the Bolsheviki' by Captain F. F. Moore; 'Adonis Makes a World's Record' by Henry E. Dixey; 'No Wonder the Church Bells Rang' by Elsie Janis. All in this one June number—mind you!"

"IN the last six months or so, Hearst's has published articles or shorter signed statements by Gertrude Atherton, Newton D. Baker, Bernard M. Baruch, David Belasco, Evangeline Booth, Irving T. Bush, Sir Hall Caine, Champ Clark, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, B. C. Forbes, Henry Ford, John Temple Graves, William Randolph Hearst, Franklin K. Lane, Maurice Maeterlinck, T. G. Masaryk, Senator H. L. Myers, Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, Charles M. Schwab, Count Ilya Tolstoy, Senator John W. Weeks, John N. Willys."

"MY daughter—the artist—takes Hearst's every month for its pictures. Artistically, she tells me, among popular magazines, it stands absolutely alone."

"WHERE except Hearst's can you find Flagg, Christy, and Underwood all in the same issue? And artists like Keller, Winter, Will Foster, Benda, Bracker, Shinn regularly? And Baron de Meyer photographs. For its splendid pictures alone, Hearst's is worth many times its price. Besides, there is the "Art of the Month" by Gardner Teall in every number. This with "The Play of the Month," "The Book of the Month" and "The Science of the Month"—makes Hearst's a magazine quite beyond the ordinary."

"YES, a friend of mine in publishing business himself tells me that he has checked it up carefully and that beyond the slightest question, Hearst's really is the handsomest and most expensive magazine published."

"IT certainly sounds good!" I answered. "I guess you're right. Anyway, I for one, won't let another day go without seeing for myself. I'll get the June Hearst's at the very next news-stand."

A Magazine with a Mission

'BUILD NOW' IS SUREST FORM OF SAVING

Warning Issued to Investors by Contractors and Dealers in Supplies

"Build now and save into the bargain. Take advantage of the present prices."

This is the advice of William H. Graves, member of one of the largest concerns dealing in building supplies.

"The rapid development of economic methods of production which brought down prices after the Civil War, are not now operating to any such degree as they did then," Mr. Graves said. "The cost of skilled labor will never be any less than now, and building construction is consequently not likely to fall by any appreciable amount for many years.

"The wisest business men are those who decide to go ahead with construction of building and production of goods."

Mr. Graves today received from T. K. Holden, investigator division of public works and construction development of the United States Department of Labor at Washington, a personal letter in which the Federal official urges a "Build Now" campaign.

MATERIALS RELATIVELY LOW.

"Our present knowledge of facts and of recent development causes us to believe that building now is a good investment, and that those who start building activities early will profit thereby, while those who wait," Mr. Holden says in voicing the opinion of the department of Labor officials.

Another argument in favor of building now is the fact that rents and real estate valuations which, for the most part, did not increase during the war, have been moving upward rapidly within the past few months," Mr. Holden says after emphasizing that the cost of building materials is relatively low.

"Early this year," he adds, "some people argued that prices would have a fall because they were out of all reason when compared with the dollar, as expressed in terms of real and personal property. What has actually happened has been an upward movement in property valuations and a level commensurate with the present general level of prices, wages and cost of living.

DOLLAR VALUE SHRINKS.

"In other words, this is the final piece of evidence to the effect that the dollar has permanently shrunk in value, and that the present price level is comparatively stable. We trust that you will have success in persuading your clients to build now."

Mr. Holden says that the Department of Labor at first urged prospective home owners and public officials to build now as a patriotic move, but that present knowledge illustrates to the officials of the department that now is the most profitable time to build, and that those who 'Build Now' will have advantages over those who hold back.

According to the figures in a report sent to the Department of Labor by Mr. Graves and now approved by the department, shrinkages in the purchasing power of the dollar is considerable. "A pre-war dollar is now worth in terms of:

Lumber	38 cents
Farm products	46 cents
Building materials (except steel)	54 cents
All other commodities	47 cents

PRODUCTION CURTAILED.

Production of building materials has greatly curtailed during the war and the market is now understocked, his report shows. During the last year of the war the manufacture of building materials in this country is less than in 1917. Common brick, 20 per cent. less; Portland cement, 23 per cent.; common brick, 50 per cent.; and lumber, 19 per cent.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

Hair is by far the most conspicuous thing about us, and is probably the most easily damaged by dull or careless treatment. If we were only careful in hair washing we would have virtually no hair troubles.

Are especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that brings out all the natural beauty of the hair; that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt; can easily be used at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of canthrox, which you can get at any druggist's, in a cup of hot water. This makes a full cup of shampoo liquid—enough so it is easy to apply it to all the hair instead of just the top of the head. This chemically dissolves all impurities and creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, and its fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After canthrox shampoo, arranging the hair is a pleasure.—Advertisement.

SERVICES TOMORROW FOR "RAY" WILLIAMS

The funeral of Horatio ("Ray") Williams, former circulation manager of the Boston American, who died suddenly in Brooklyn last Saturday night, will be held from Waterman's Chapel at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The service will be private, with burial in Woodlawn Cemetery.

Mr. Williams was born in Somerville and, while named Horatio, became popularly known as "Ray." He attended Charlestown High School. He married Miss Grace M. Waite of Malden. He became identified with the circulation end of newspaper work, developing an executive ability that put him in charge of the circulation department of the Boston American. After holding that position for a considerable period Mr. Williams went to New York city as circulation manager for the Leslie-Judge Company.

Paris, May 20.—The war cost France approximately $38,000,000,000, Yves Guyot disclosed in the Senate in the course of a debate on French finances. The national expenses for the fiscal year of 1919 were estimated at 23,000,000,000.

WILLIAM J. POWER DEAD; CHOSE FUNERAL BEARERS

The unique experience of selecting his own pall bearers was the privilege of William J. Power, chairman of the Ward 29 Democratic Committee, who died early today at his home, No. 24 Mt. Ida Road, Dorchester, following a long illness. Power was 44 years old, and was born in South Boston. He was employed by the Hawley-Folsom Company for many years. Before his death Powers obtained the consent of Redmond S. Fitzgerald, John Cunningham, Daniel Leary and Joseph Conatry to act as pall bearers at his funeral, which will take place Thursday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Peter's Church, Meetinghouse Hill. Power was president of the Jefferson Club and a member of St. Peter's Court, M. C. O. F., Dorchester Council, K. of C.; Boston Catholic Union, Dorchester Catholic Club, and Fourth Degree of Bishop Cheverus Council. He is survived by a wife and three sons, aged 5, 3 and 2 years.

FINED $75 FOR DRIVING AUTO AFTER DRINKING

Frank E. Smith of Cambridge was fined $75 in the Queen's Court today by Judge Avery for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He appealed and the case was continued until May 31, 1919.

The citation reads: "While completing a course at Harvard was cited for attacking two Boklier machines and sending one down in flames. This happened on his twenty-first birthday.

SOUTH BOSTON BOY HELD AS BURGLAR SUSPECT

Following an attempted break in Ryan Bros.' grocery, River street, Waltham, early today, Christopher Berg, a seventeen-year-old ex-sailor from South Boston, was arrested near the scene. A hold-up at the Watchung Country Club was said to have been the work of the same gang. Police say he was doing near the club when he was doing near the store, and that the former sailor said he was looking for his hat. The officer says he had under his coat a revolver. Another break last night was made at No. 61 Hanover street, Waltham, and jewelry was stolen from Miss Mary McIntosh. There have been many other recent breaks in Waltham.

THEATRES

The Greatest Medical Authorities in the World have made public statements in which they endorse the value of such ingredients as are contained in Father John's Medicine.

These great physicians say in substance, that these ingredients "are beneficial notably in wasting diseases and those maladies which are connected with or have their origin in debilitating and wasting diseases and in colds."

To detail here the statements of these various authorities would require too much space, but if you desire to see these statements in more complete form, write to Father John's Medicine, Lowell, Mass., and we will be glad to give the names of the authorities quoted, with brief excerpts from their public statements.

Father John's Medicine is a pure and wholesome body builder, contains no alcohol or dangerous drugs.

GOOD MUSICAL COMEDY AT PARK SQ.

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

What an alluring and seductive title, "Among the Girls!"

What suggestions of bright eyes, swishing skirts, pink cheeks, ankles, white arms, rosebud lips—well, anyway, that's the name of a new musical comedy, which commenced its career at the Park Square Theatre last night.

The title of a musical comedy is most important, all important. With a really fetching title, you can cast and clip the show, and, if necessary, throw it away and build a new one, until you get something that justifies the name.

My guess is that "Among the Girls" is getting into a hit, although the astute Selwyns will have to speed it up and rearrange a good deal of the musical matter.

The piece was originally a farce by Rob. Cooper Harper, called "Seven Changes." As it never reached Boston, it is to all intents and purposes brand new book. The late Henry Blossom arranged it for musical comedy and wrote most of the lyrics. Mr. MacGregor, who staged it here when Blossom passed away a few weeks ago, Raymond Hubbell wrote the music.

The idea is that a young and unprepossessing bachelor [illegible] compelled to marry at short notice or lose a fortune of $12,000,000 left him by an eccentric old bachelor uncle. By blessing eccentric relatives are to blot manufacturers. The young man happens to be in a clubroom in which is filled with girls and he makes desperate love to seven of them in succession.

A libidinous youth, who will be the beneficiary in case our hero dies, plays villain in an intoxicated manner that is worthy of George Cohan, and a bevy of really charming and interesting girl types lift the book away above the level of ordinary musical comedy.

The cleverest musical version of an old farce that I have ever seen was "The Only Girl," by Blossom and Herbert, in which there were only eight or ten musical numbers and the action of the farce little impeded. There are eighteen musical numbers in "Among the Girls," half a dozen of which are way above the average and the remainder indifferent.

If "Among the Girls" had less music and more of the original action it would be greatly improved.

The company is a very large one and unusually gifted. Percival Knight, the laughing comedian with a perpetual frog in his throat, is well cast as the diffident suitor. Dennnan Maley, who is getting to be celebrated in boob characters, is capital as the drunken villian. Earl Benham dances and sings effectively and so does Evelyn Cavanaugh.

Beverly West has only a bit as a flapper trying to be mercenary, but she does it very cleverly. Renee Delting displayed the best voice in the cast in two numbers. Geraldine Waite was winsome and magnetic as the girl who married the $12,000,000 and the remainder of the big cast was adequate.

Two or three of the numbers contained admirable business. Mr. Knight had a topical song "I Want to Get Back to the War," which made a hit. Mr. Hubbell's music is agreeable without being startlingly original.

ORPHEUM THEATRE—The leading act of vaudeville offered at Loew's Orpheum Theatre yesterday typified in its title the quality of the variety entertainment it is "Full of Pep," a musical comedy production in miniature, presented by a company of ten, headed by two comedians of special laugh-producing gifts. Other acts are the Gorman brothers, who made a big hit with their repertoire of songs; Wheeler and Potter, in an ingenious one-act comedy crowded with laughs, "A Phonie Affair"; Knowles and Hurst, comedians, and the Aerial La Vails. On the screen there were shown the latest news pictures, a comedy and the screen version of Hall Caine's sensational novel, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," in which a very capable cast is pictured.

NEW WORLD—HIP THEATRE—There was variety as well as excellence unusual in the bill combined of vaudeville and photoplays shown yesterday at the New Waldorf Theatre. Heading the vaudeville was the pretentious song and comedy revue, "The League of Nations," a novel offering presented by a company of six men and one woman. Others on the bill were Conlin and Grant, in "A Fool and a Flirt"; Edward Lessig and company in the one-act comedy, "Wells and Company"; Helen Barrington, a pleasing singing comedienne, and La Emma and Boyds, acrobats. On the screen there were shown the news pictures, a comedy and Mary Boland, in "A Woman's Experience."

SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS COMING HERE MAY 26

Despite the uncertain Spring weather, the season for peanuts, red lemonade, flying gymnasts, circus clowns and barefaced kids is at hand!

The Sells-Floto circus, the first big tent show of the season, will exhibit on the Huntington avenue grounds for a week, opening Monday afternoon, May 26.

The Sells-Floto circus is heralded as a show of magnificent size and novelty. It is a Western institution, and has a most enviable reputation West of the Mississippi. This will be its first visit to New England, and naturally there is a great deal of curiosity to see a circus that other sections of the United States have pronounced the best of its class.

GRIFFITH REPERTORY SEASON AT COLONIAL

David Wark Griffith, supreme as a screen producer, will offer a distinct innovation when, beginning Wednesday evening, May 28, and continuing twice daily thereafter, he will inaugurate a Spring season of repertory. This is an original idea of Mr. Griffith, and the repertory consists of a cycle of photoplay productions presented in what the producer believes is an ideal manner involving the coupling with the unrollings diversions of the speaking stage. The initial offering will be "Broken Blossoms," an original romance based upon Thomas Burke's stories in his volume, "Limehouse Nights."

"THE MIKADO" REVIVED AT PLYMOUTH

Gilbert & Sullivan's "The Mikado" was produced at the Plymouth Theatre last night. It is not too much to say that "The Mikado" is the greatest comic opera of all time. "Pinafore," by the same authors, may have had a longer continuous run when the craze for it was on in the late seventies, but "The Mikado," which first came along in the middle eighties has easily outranked it in popularity.

"The Mikado" is a model of its kind and it is always a welcome no matter whether the cast is "All Star," or one that is less pretentious. Last night at the Plymouth the cast was "All Star" as advertised and it gave a performance that has seldom, if ever, been equalled in this city.

Musically it was as well nigh perfect as a carefully selected company of singers and a large orchestra directed by the well known musician, Max Bendix, could make it. Dramatically, a flaw could be picked here and there perhaps, but what is the use, if the singing is fine and the costumes are adequate, and the scenery is of that modern simplicity that is so effective, and the opera is staged with painstaking care?

A highly appreciative audience enjoyed the performance. It is doubtful if the well known music of Sullivan or the quaint humor of Gilbert was ever more heartily applauded even at the opera's first performance in Boston, which was at the opening of the Hollis Street Theatre nearly forty-three years ago. Nearly every number was an encore, and when it came to "They Never Will Be Missed" and "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," there was no end to the request for more.

Frank Moulin was the Lord High Executioner and gave a finished performance. To be sure he took liberties with Gilbert's text now and then, or rather, interpolated a remark here and there, but this has long since been a perquisite of Ko-Ko, and it must be said that Mr. Moulin never descended to buffoonery. He has a much better voice than most of the comedians of comic opera and he filled in well with the others instead of handicapping them as most Ko Ko's do).

William Danforth was a very unctious Mikado, making a little more of the part than is usual and he carried off his principal song in fine style. Warren Proctor, the Nanki Poo, was all that could be desired from a singing standpoint. James Goddard, who sang and acted Pooh Bah, comes with a reputation as a grand opera singer. He was somewhat mechanical in acting, but his voice filled the bill.

John Willard made quite a hit as Pish Tush's limited opportunities, and his song, "Our Great Mikado, Virtuous Man," was never better sung in this town. This excellent singer has just returned to the United States after many months overseas duty as a flying officer (lieutenant) in the air service. He is a former champion swimmer of the University of California and enjoys the further distinction of being a graceful playwright.

The women of the cast were splendid singers. Miss Mabel Day, as Yum Yum, was in fine voice. Gladys Caldwell made a pretty picture and as for Katisha, one would go a long way to find a better one than Greta Risley.

"The Mikado" will be performed tonight and Wednesday nights and Thursday matinee, and on Thursday evening "The Pirates of Penzance" will fill out the remainder of the week. "The Gondoliers" and "Pinafore" will divide next week, when the

Plays That Remain

BOSTON OPERA HOUSE—Flushed with the success of his one-man song recital at the Boston Opera House on Sunday night, Al Jolson ettered upon the fifth week of his tremendously successful engagement in "Sinbad" at the Boston Opera House with a packed house last night. The chief event of this week will be the special theatre party of the Boston Bank Officers' Association, who have bought 1,200 seats for tomorrow night.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—Laurette Taylor began her final week at the Hollis Street Theatre in J. Hartley Manners' comedy, "Happiness," last evening. This engagement has been a happy one, and the clever star could have stayed on much longer were it not that she has planned a trip to England with her husband, Mr. Manners, which prevented an extension of her stay here.

COLONIAL THEATRE—"La La Lucille" entered upon the concluding week of its engagement at the Colonial Theatre last evening. The brevity of its stay is to be deplored by many, as the impression it created leaves no doubt that it is a typical Boston attraction.

TREMONT THEATRE—"Flo-Flo" began the fifth week of its Boston engagement at the Tremont Theatre last evening. There is no question concerning the popularity of this attraction, which has gone along steadily doing a constantly good business.

SHUBERT THEATRE—"The Eyes of the World," the screen version of Harold Bell Wright's famous novel of that name, has made a decided success at the Shubert Theatre, the audience last night, at the beginning of the second week, being large and enthusiastic.

MAJESTIC THEATRE—"The Bird of Paradise," Richard Walton Tully's love story of Hawaii, is making friends at the Majestic Theatre, where last night it began another successful week.

WILBUR THEATRE—Nora Bayes appears in the dual role of both star and owner of "Ladies First," the musical farce at the Wilbur. This musicalized version of "A Contented Woman" makes lively entertainment and the fun seldom lags.

brief season of Gilbert & Sullivan, for which we have to thank Mr. Fortune Gallo, will come to a close.

By the way, we wonder who wrote the fanfare for horns that brings the Mikado on the stage near the close of the opera. Arthur Sullivan didn't. That is, not for "The Mikado."

NORA TO GIVE AWAY "SALLIES' " DOUGHNUTS

If you want a Salvation Army doughnut, Nora Bayes will give you one at the Wilbur Theatre. Nora is spending months overseas duty as a Y. M. C. A. entertainer, and she is so strong for the famous doughnuts that she is going to give them away this week between acts of "Ladies First."

Nora did this in New York for several months, and she estimates that over 50,000 New Yorkers who had forgotten the taste of a doughnut tasted them and pronounced them good. They were real Salvation Army doughnuts, the kind the boys "over there" got and made world famous.

Miss Bayes launched and saw "The Doughnut Girl," a Salvation Army song, the first popular song that the army ever published. The army lets discharged and jobless soldiers sell this song and keep the proceeds. Nora is going to sing this song tonight and at every performance this week, by chorus girls.

ENGLISH PLAY WELL DONE AT COPLEY

Getting married is "quite a habit." Shaking off the "chains" is something altogether different.

Not because you're wife doesn't love you or because you dislike your wife is the reason you want to cast off the cold, iron bars that bind. But simply because you cannot stand the humdrum of the daily grind and want to shake off the chains that shackle you.

You weaken to the seasonable desire to something else; you want to get away to new pastures; you want change and whatever it may bring; you don't want to sit atinue pen-pushing for putting your eternity into measures of real and personal property or a column of figures, or a ledger clerk or a panicky stock market. And you don't want to make yourself a rubber band to the fluctuating moods of your employer, or your clients, as the case may be.

The Henry Jewett Players unbound a whole lot of marital and domestic chains when they produced for the first time in America "Chains," by Elizabeth Baker, at the Copley Theatre last night. Through three acts there is cloudy, threatening weather in a play, the scenes of which are laid in London but, night as easily have been set anywhere else. But (even in London) the fourth act had glimpses of sunshine that developed into a broad blue sky with all that that means for a struggling young couple about to be married.

"Chains" is not a problem play, nor one with a moral, but there is a moral to be derived from it. Typically English in its setting, it draws strongly the character of the young married man who wants to get away from his office stool, wants to see and live in the great far away. Because of a friend bent on emigration and incidentally the "chucking up" of his "situation" and bound out for Australia, the young married man wants to follow him. The temptation to indulge in wanderlust is great but an impending happy event in an otherwise incompatible family couple demonstrates valor as the better part of reason, instead of vice-versa.

As usual the Henry Jewett Players present a new and almost unheard of play in a sense characteristically their own. The play is full of humor and pathos. Noel Leslie as the young man who is willing to sacrifice his fledgling, marital bliss for the great adventure of seeking fortune elsewhere, and in reaching the high peak of unrest he does no more than many another has done. His wife, portrayed by Phillis Relph, brings him back to his balance and pride of home.

In "Chains" every role is a principal one, and besides Mr. Leslie and Miss Relph, other characters were admirably filled by E. E. Clive, Jessamine Newcombe, Cameron Matthews, Catherine Lexow, Donald Call, Leonard Craske, Sarah Keiglwin, Viola Roach, H. Conway Wingfield and Fred W. Permain.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—Harold Lockwood in his latest picture, "A Man of Honor," is the feature on the photo-play bill at the St. James Theatre for the first three days of this week.

WALDRON'S CASINO—The Bowery Burlesquers are at Waldron's Casino for the week, headed by funny Billy Foster and eccentric Frank Harcourt. This is one of Joe Hurtig's famous productions, staged under his personal observation and cast with a superior company of players and pretmaries for wealth and position a most much her elder. Disillusioned during her honeymoon, when she later inherits a large sum of money she hides the fact from her husband and sets up another establishment contiguous to her home where she poses as another woman. This entails complications which are filled with mystery and result in a powerful climax.

"CALLUS CORNS" LIFT RIGHT OFF

Apply a few drops of "Freezone"—No pain!

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off!

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit.

The kidneys are the most overworked organs in the human body. When they break down under the strain and the deadly uric acid accumulates and crystallizes, look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels, causing excruciating pain and set up irritations which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into dreaded Bright's Disease.

One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion, or rheumatism.

Do not wait until the danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble go after the cause at once. Get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules, imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They will give almost immediate relief. If for any cause they should not, your money will be refunded. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL. None other is genuine. In sealed boxes, three sizes. Advertisement.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.—Advertisement.

Who's Who in the 26th Division

LT.-COL. JOHN D. MURPHY.

Lieutenant-Colonel John D. Murphy was born in Natick, June 15, 1893, was educated in the schools of that town and spent four years at Norwich University, graduating with a major's commission. He has always had a military leaning, even serving the old Ninth Massachusetts infantry as a mascot. His father, Daniel J. Murphy, was a major in the Ninth.

During the Mexican disorders in 1916 he organized the 101st Machine Gun Company, of which he became lieutenant.

At the beginning of the recent world war he was given command of the seized German ships in Boston harbor, and acquitted himself with honor. After going to France he was appointed captain and afterward major of the 102d Machine Gun Battalion. General Edwards said he was one of the best machine gun officers in France.

Later he was promoted to lieutenant-colonel on General Hale's staff. For a time he was acting chief of staff.

He has four citations for bravery, also was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Croix de Guerre. At one time he removed all his insignia of office and went "over the top" as a private.

In civil life Lieutenant-Colonel Murphy is president and superintendent of the Murphy Boot & Shoe Company.

ARLINGTON HAS 176 FIRES IN PAST YEAR

Walter H. Peirce, chief of the Arlington Fire Department, in his annual report for the past year, states that the department answered 215 alarms, including 110 bell alarms and 109 still alarms.

Of this number thirty-four proved to be false. The large number of false alarms was occasioned by the peace celebration in November.

The total value of buildings endangered by fires in the past year was $122,600, and value of contents of these buildings amounted to $79,000. Insurance on the buildings totaled $109,050, and insurance on contents, $39,350. Insurance paid on buildings amounted to $10,114.71, and insurance paid on contents totaled $2,288.

URGENT NEED OF JOBS FOR SERVICE MEN

Increase in Number of Discharged Soldiers Grows Daily

The increase in the number of discharged service men seeking employment is becoming more apparent every day, according to a report submitted by the Employment Bureau for Returning Soldiers and Sailors, with headquarters on Boston Common.

This bureau is in urgent need of more jobs to meet the situation, which has become more pronounced during the last week.

Employers can render distinctive service to this Bureau and more especially to these men who have returned to civilian life and are desirous of getting back to their various lines of occupation.

The following list, recently compiled by the Employment Bureau of Soldiers and Sailors, gives the number of service men seeking employment, and the lines of occupations in which they desire to engage.

Major, Almost Buried, Then Saved, Meets Rescuer

Major James Brown, formerly of the 104th Infantry, has just met Captain Edwin Cooper, official photographer of the 26th Division. They met once before, but Brown didn't know it.

On a battlefield in France lay Brown, apparently dead. He was about to be buried. Cooper, seeking objects to photograph, saw Brown. He studied the man for a few minutes. Then he ordered a doctor to examine Brown.

Brown was revived and sent to a hospital, classed as a shell-shock patient. He recovered and was sent home.

Brown met Cooper and Cooper told him about it, at headquarters of the Northeastern Department.

Petition to the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy to send Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Home with Six Months' Pay

Sign this petition, get your friends to sign it, and forward it to the Boston American, 80 Summer st., Boston, Mass.

To the Honorable Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War:

To the Honorable Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy:

The undersigned respectfully urge you to return to their homes as soon as possible the soldiers, sailors and marines who have accomplished so brilliantly every object America had in the war.

We urge also that you obtain the necessary authority to pay these men their military wages for six months, or for some sufficient period after their discharge from the army until they can obtain useful and remunerative employment.

We urge this as an act of simple justice by a great nation to its heroes.

"Gets-It" Peels My Corns Off!

Any Corn or Callus Comes Off Peacefully, Painlessly. Never Fails.

It's almost a crime to suffer a day with a corn or callus the "Gets-It" way. You spend 2 or 3 seconds putting on 2 or 3 drops of "Gets-It," about as simple as putting on your hat. "Gets-It" does away forever with "contraptions," "wraps," plasters, greasy ointments that rub off, blood letting knives, and scissors that stop into the "quick." "Gets-It" eases pain. Your "tootsy" corn shrinks, dies, loosens from the toe. You peel the corn painlessly from your toe in one complete piece. That's where the picnic comes in—you peel it off as you would a banana peel. Nothing else but "Gets-It" can do it. Get yourself, common sense "Gets-It."

Use "Gets-It," peel off corn this way.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.—Advertisement.

ACCUSED OF STEALING COUNTY JAIL HENS

Worcester, May 20.—Charged with stealing five hens from the Worcester County jail, Anthony Bombard is on trial before a jury in the Superior Criminal Court.

Police officers testified that they went to the home of Bombard's brother, No. 80 Taylor street, and found Bombard building a hen coop for them. They said they found three hens cooking in the oven, two more in the pantry and "the whole place smelling of chicken." They also said Bombard admitted taking the fowl.

Liquor and Preserves Found in Cells of Convicts

Providence, May 20.—A search of cells at the State Prison resulted in the finding of knives, liquor, preserves and a "wagon load" of articles smuggled there by a route that is said to puzzle prison officials. It is charged convicts were cooking meals in their cells and had all the paraphernalia which goes to make up a satisfactory meal. Warden Charles E. Linscott decided to raid the cells with disastrous results to the prisoners.

How the articles were smuggled into the cells is a mystery.

A number of inmates are credited with making much money selling matches, tobacco and, in fact, almost any article desired by the customers.

DECLARE PASTOR DID NOT SAIL FOR ENGLAND

Friends of Missing Minister Believe He Is Still in Rhode Island

Providence, May 20.—The Rev. Ernest M. Webber of Central Falls, R. I., whose mysterious disappearance ten days ago is puzzling the police of all New England, did not leave this city for New York to take a steamer for his home in England as has been persistently rumored the last few days.

This was stoutly asserted by members of his parish, who have spent their time attempting to solve the mystery of his whereabouts.

Mrs. George Dohing, sister of the missing man, is again seriously ill at her home here. The wife of the missing pastor was called to her bedside today. It was first believed that the serious illness of his sister might have caused a temporary disarrangement of the pastor's mind, but authorities have abandoned this clew.

The Rev. John Thompson of the Dexter Street Mission, who took the missing pastor's place in the pulpit last Sunday, stated today that he believes Webber is still in Rhode Island and that this city will be able to turn up the clew to his disappearance.

ARLINGTON REMEMBERS DEAD HEROES IN REPORT

The town of Arlington has paid tribute to the eighteen men of that town who died in the service of their country in the world war by printing a list of their names in the annual town report. Those who made the supreme sacrifice were: Major Marshall S. Holbrook, Lieutenant Warren E. Robinson, Lieutenant Charles H. Upton, Lieutenant Raymond Taylor, Lieutenant Edward Ralph Kenneson, Corporal Thomas J. Finn, Joseph Zwinge, John A. Barr, Jr., Arthur Vail, Durant S. Currier, Charles N. O'Donnell, John J. Grady, Michael Marrigan, Rytholm Gunnar, John H. Cochrane, John J. McCarthy, Richmond F. Collins and Wilbur Allen.

MAYOR'S WIDOW SEEKS ACCOUNTING OF RENTS

Lawrence, May 20.—A Master's hearing in the case of C. J. Corcoran and Josephine G. Scanlon, wife of the late ex-mayor Michael A. Scanlon against John W. Duffy in a bill in equity has been opened in probate court here with James Sullivan of Lynn as master. The widow of the former mayor on behalf of herself and minor children seeks to compel John W. Duffy to render an accounting of rents and profits since the purchase of certain Old Orchard Beach property, part of which her husband owned in 1913. The bill also seeks to partition the property of the Old Orchard Pier Company and the Forest Hill property at Old Orchard Beach.

VANDALS ROB GRAVES OF THEIR FLOWERS

West Brookfield, May 20.—Thefts of flowers in graveyards have been reported to Louis E. Snow, chairman of the burial ground commission of Pine Grove Cemetery. Choice flowers left by friends and relatives of the dead are taken almost as soon as placed on the graves.

G. O. P. DEFEAT IN SALARY GRAB, SAYS ADAMS

Melrose Mayor Issues Warning to Party Against Bill

Mayor Charles H. Adams of Melrose, one of the veteran Republicans of the State, today issued a warning to his party that the passage of what he termed a salary grab bill and a pay envelope bill would mean defeat this Fall.

Mayor Adams addressed a letter to the prospective candidates for the legislature from Melrose, and Representative Harris A. Worcester, who is now home recuperating from a recent operation, urging him to [illegible] against the measures. The letter will be read to the voters at the caucuses to be held in Melrose this week, Mayor Adams said today. The Republicans are in power, and as a result of the recent election will have a majority in both branches of the Legislature next year, but Senate and House leaders have declared that if the bills are passed they will be vetoed by Governor Coolidge.

A number of bills were introduced in the Legislature providing for the raising of the salaries of members and it is to one of these that Mayor Adams refers. Such bills were voted for, it was declared, by the members from Melrose, but after the public protest became pronounced they refused to vote for the measures.

Mayor Adams also criticises the Republican leaders in the House and Senate for refusing to permit the Governor's veto of the bills to be overridden by the ballots, and says the people will be given an opportunity to express their disapproval of the measures at the polls in November.

Mayor Adams declares that the weakness of the bills is realized by the leaders, and was demonstrated to members of the House when they refused to override the veto of Governor Coolidge on the bill providing for the payment of a bonus to soldiers and sailors.

NIFTY NEHF BAFFLES PIRATES

Annexes Smart 2-1 Combat from Babe Adams—Bingles in Pinch—Riggert Shines

Now that they're out of the cellar, the Braves are all set to sail upward and hop into the hero and miracle class with Commander Read, Harry Hawker and others.

The team's real "class" is beginning to show; the gloom of constant licking has worn off, and there's trouble ahead for all comers.

Trimming Pittsburgh twice in a row, a club that was surging out to the front till it hit these parts, has scattered a flock of hope throughout the ranks. Then, the acquisition of Cruise is a source of joy. The ex-Card is a natural hitter, and as the team has started to clout anyhow, his presence will surely be felt very shortly.

Arthur Nehf pitched one grand game yesterday, beating another Saturday. Rudolph, Northrop and Ragan have already evidenced to the world that they are ready and good. This gives Stallings five class A hurlers to work with, and any club with that for a starter is dangerous.

SMACKS LIKE 1914.

The other clubs in the league realise it, and that's why the Braves are having so much trouble getting the players they want. Just as soon as the hitters they have get hitting, the team can not help sailing past quite a bit of its opposition in the circuit.

Three of the regulars are up with the elite and three more are just about due to land there. That, with air-tight pitching, which the team has, means a whole lot for June or thereabouts. And one cannot forget the fact that with Smith fielding better than ever he did before on third, the Braves infield is not [illegible] to boast about.

Holke, hitting the ball once more, is showing just how good a first baseman he is. Herzog never played better and that's saying a mouthful. The Rabbit is himself again—another mouthful. The outfielders can go and get them, and are more than due to [illegible] hit them.

FANS FEELING BETTER.

All in all, we can't help becoming optimistic again, and neither can the Brave fans. Tom, Dick and Harry and everybody has been admitting all along [illegible] games. [illegible] agers of [illegible] the same [illegible] to inquire.

Getting [illegible] little Master Rudolph was [illegible] to keep the Braves on the victory paths. He won their first home game and he's anxious to win another.

It looked like Earl Hamilton for the hostiles, though Bezdek, desperate at a couple of lickings, may send his best bet, Wilbur Cooper, after the cond[illegible].

Yesterday's fray saw Arthur Nehf nose out Babe Adams and Frank Miller for a splendid 2-1 victory. Arthur had the enemy tied up in knots most of the time, and let them down with five hits.

He was tendered dandy support, and, though the alien sharpshooters kept the Brave hit column scant, they broke through often enough to win.

NEHF'S HIT BIG HELP.

Nifty Arthur really won the game himself by peeling off a lusty oneshot to left in the fifth and knocking off the triumphal counter. Previously the Corsairs had tied it up, mostly through sensational work on the part of dizzying Master Bigbee.

The initial Brave tally was scored by Joe Riggert, who showed his great speed [illegible] home from second when [illegible] bobbled one that Smith bumped at him. Joe just made it by a whale of a slide around Big Ed Sweeney.

As the experts would say, the drive has started. They're off and out of the pit. Whoop-a!

O'SULLIVAN PARK LEASE SATISFACTORY TO LEARY

Lawrence, May 20.—Alderman John A. Flanagan has received notification from Fred G. Leary, owner of the Lawrence (New England League) club, that he will abide by all the terms laid down in the contract for the lease of O'Sullivan Park. The stipulation provides that the rental shall be $500 and a liability bond filed for $25,000 to take care of damages to property about the park.

MRS. DALEY AND MISS CURTIS IN GOOD FORM

Some excellent golf was played in the second team match under the auspices of the Women's Golf Association of Boston at the Woodland Club, Auburndale. There were thirteen players on a side and Team A won from Team B, 8-5.

In the first team match played at [illegible] Miss [illegible] was [illegible] this time had to go to the nineteenth hole [illegible].

Mrs. E. W. Daley had little trouble winning from Mrs. G. B. Johnson. The latter was down most of the time and after nine holes, had been completed Mrs. Daley was leading three up.

On the inward round Mrs. Johnson lost ground and the match ended on the fifteenth green, Mrs. Daley winning 4 and 3. Mrs. D. M. Belcher, Winchester, who played on team B, won from Mrs. E. H. Baker 2 and 1.

RUTH ON MOUND IN FINAL GAME IN ST. LOUIS

Davenport Is Jolmes Burke's First Slab Pick—Off for Tigerland Tonight

St. Louis, May 20.—Greater Boston fandom must just naturally be all excited over the Western slump of the World's Champion.

Four defeats and one victory is the record so far for the Red Sox, which is indeed a slump for this crafty club.

The series with the Browns closes today and then the Red Sox hit it for Detroit. They can finish this Western invasion under the .500 mark and Barrow will not admit that his machine is slipping.

"But here in the West I read where we are through," said Barrow this morning. "Why, the race isn't a month old and they're counting us out. Fiddlesticks!

"I'm not making excuses, but we haven't been able to play regularly enough to get started in batting and pitching.

BARROW NOT GLUM.

"Wait for the June, July and August sun, when these .400 fence-busters drop back to their real stride and the rookie twirlers are found by our batters."

When a club is losing the manager usually shifts his forces. The Browns jockeyed their line-up a week ago and started a spurt that netted five victories in a row.

The only change of importance made by Barrow had Gainer in left field and Wallie Schang batting in sixth place.

How long Gainer will remain in left field is unknown. Babe Ruth was hauled out of the pasture to return as a pitcher, with Joe Bush an invalid and Ray Caldwell losing his control.

Ruth has been in a peculiar batting slump. He started out like the fence-buster he is, with doubles, triples and circuits but for the last ten days has not been on his stride.

"All because we're not getting enough practice," is Barrow's explanation.

BIG BREAK FOR BURKE.

The Red Sox were set to play the Browns yesterday but rain kept the athletes in their hotel exchanging box score incidents. Baby Doll Jacobson was discussed at length.

He is the husky who caused the two Boston defeats here. He singled off Sam Jones, scoring runners from third and second, and he singled off Carl Mays Sunday in the ninth with three on.

An injury to Kenneth Williams saved Jacobson's job with the Browns. He was marked for the discard, the waiver sheet was prepared to go around the circuit and he was [illegible] to the minors.

Williams injured his left knee sliding to second against Detroit May 10, and Jacobson, sitting on the bench, became a regular.

Ruth was to face the Browns today and he will draw Dave Davenport for his pitching opponent.

LEWIS THROWS ZBYSZKO AND CLAIMS MAT TITLE

Chicago, May 20.—Strangler Lewis won two out of three falls from Wladek Zbyszko in their mat contest here. Lewis stated he will claim the world's championship, now held by Earl Caddock, who is in France. Zbyszko won the first fall in 36.52, Lewis the second in 48.33, and the third in 12.6.

TURF CLASSICS CARDED FOR THIS WEEK

Many of Chief Events Will Be Held at Jamaica Track

By TOM THORP.

The present week is rich in turf classics. Ten most interesting features are carded to be decided during the next five days. Four of these will be run over the Jamaica course, while the other six will be staged at the home of the Westchester Racing Association, Belmont Park, which will have its Spring opening on Thursday.

These latter features are sure to bring out large throngs of turf patrons. They are sure to make the week a red letter occasion in turf happenings.

Included in the events at Belmont Park are some of the most important of the season. The Metropolitan Handicap, a turf classic of note, is to be the feature of the card arranged by Secretary A. McL. Earlocker for opening day. The best handicap steeds of the East are entered in this rich classic. A large field is sure to go to post in it.

The New York steeplechase, to be run the same day, will serve to inaugurate the cross-country season in the Metropolitan district. Most of the best chasers shown to date are entered in this event. Sport of a rare nature is said to be brought to light during the running of the race.

The Fashion Stakes, for two-year-olds, the Withers, for three-year-olds and the Mineola Handicap, for three-year-olds and upwards, to be run Saturday, cause the present week to be listed among the most interesting of the racing year. Each is plentifully supplied with promising entries. The races result in exceptionally close finishes.

For the remainder of the meet at the Jamaica course cards of better than ordinary quality have been arranged.

Sunday Ball Big Hit With New Yorkers, Says Sam Crane

By SAM CRANE,
Baseball Editor New York Journal.

There were nearly 40,000 people in the Polo Ground Sunday, and there would have been 10,000 more inside the enclosure if there had been accommodations for them.

When the sale of tickets stopped Eighth avenue for two blocks from the park was almost impassable, and all that crowd of pushing humanity was on its way to the entrance gates.

They would have paid almost any price to see the game.

Sunday baseball is not popular in Manhattan—no, I guess not!

It was an orderly crowd, too, once inside the grounds.

Baseball News and Notes

Hughey Fullerton was right, Fisher is proving a great help to the Reds. He led the Patmorans to victory, and, incidentally halted the Giant surge at seven consecutive wins.

Looks as if Georgie Dauss had finally found his stuff. He blanked the Senators, letting them down with three blows. His return to form should help Jennings crawl out of the cellar.

More and more it sticks out why Miller Huggins refused to trade Herbie Thormahlen for Joe Bush. The little southpaw blanked the Cleveland pretenders with three safeties. He sticks out like one of the best port-siders in the American League.

Owner Grant claims he's all set to outlast the rest of the league in bidding for Davey Robertson. He has offered more money than anybody else and believes it will finally get him the player. The identical cash bid he made for Cruise went through Saturday last.

Hugo Bezdek's suspension was ended yesterday, and he wasn't chased off the base lines. He merely decided to run his part of the contest from the cave. Hugo thinks the Braves have quite a ball club.

* * *

Max Carey is about ready to play again, and would be in there were not Bigbee playing such sensational ball. The Ty Cobb of the Northwest is hitting and fielding according to his title. And Zitzman shows so much promise Bezdek wants to keep him working.

NO TEAM GOOD IF WEAK ON HILLOCK

That's What Miller Huggins, Yankees' Pilot, Says—Branch Rickey Has Like View

By JACK VEIOCK.

New York, May 20.—Miller Huggins, snappy boss of the Yankees, was a great infielder in his heyday as a player.

It would be only natural, then, to suppose that Huggins might attach unusual importance to the infield positions if asked to name the most important part of a ball club's defence.

But Huggins is far from being prejudiced in favor of infielders. The writer recently put the question up to the little manager and he replied that the success or failure of a ball club depends first, last and all the time on the pitching.

MUST HAVE PITCHING.

"Pitching," said Huggins, "means everything in a ball club. Of course, hitting, fielding and base running play their part, and a big part, too, but without good pitching what do they amount to?

"According to my observations, the average ball club can be just about as good as its pitching staff. If it has good pitching. In other cases it may outshine the pitching, but this fact will not show in the percentage column.

"On the other hand, if the pitcher is going badly, the workings of the whole ball club are thrown out of gear mentally, and mental unrest means fielding errors and listless support."

Huggins is not the only manager who counts pitching as the most important factor in the defence of a club. Branch Rickey, who is filling Huggins' old shoes as manager of the Cardinals, says.

RICKEY SAYS LIKEWISE.

"The pitcher, in my opinion, is the most important player on a ball club. The game is his, inasmuch as he does the most work and most depends on his efforts.

"First comes the pitching staff, which is all important, and following that comes shortstop and centre field."

FANS BOOSTING GOWDY FUND AWAY OVER THE TOP

Jimmy Whalen Arranges Baseball Day at His Resort—Yankee Owners Donate $100

Just when we were about to write finis in the drive for funds with which to secure a fitting testimonial for Hero Hennery Gowdy, along comes a flock of sporting fans crying out:

"Let's go; let's go!"

They declare they want a few more days in which to add their contribution to those already sent in to the Gowdy Fund. So, the American has decided to extend the time for sending in contributions to Thursday morning.

Jimmp Whalen of the Red Dragon Bowling Alley and Pool and Billiard Parlors, in Harvard Square, is among the leaders in the demand that the fund be kept open a little longer.

He has arranged to hold a Baseball Day at his popular resort tomorrow. Half of the receipts will go to swell the Gowdy Fund.

BRAVES TO ATTEND.

So that the fans will receive all the entertainment possible, Whalen has arranged to meet Lena Blackburne of the Braves in a special bowling match. The Cambridge sporting impressario is an expert bowler; in fact, is class with Paul Poehler and Archie Walsh. Nuf sed!

Our old friend Stonewall Jackson, king of baseball fans, will also be numbered among those present. He will meet one of the Braves players in a special pool match.

The fund was given a big boost by Lieutenant-Colonel Huston and Colonel Ruppert, owners of the New York Yankees, who sent along their check for $100. They are the first American League magnates to pay tribute to Hank.

YANKEE OWNERS LIBERAL.

It was only natural that the New York owners should honor Gowdy. Lieutenant-Colonel Huston went to France with a regiment of engineers and saw service in the advance areas. Colonel Ruppert was also active in war work and never misses an opportunity to show his appreciation of a two-fisted fighting man.

A Big Fan dropped in at the American office and added $5 to the fund. Said person not only has a big heart and a large intellect, but he is also huge in stature. He asked us not to publish his name but if you are observant you can see him any day out at Braves Field.

Gowdy's popularity has spread to the theatrical ranks and last evening the baseball hero was the guest at Selwyn's Park Square, where "Among the Girls" is playing.

If you haven't already given your bit to the Gowdy Fund, do so—and now.

Join the army of live ones.

There are only two days left! Get busy!!

WAINO KETONEN MEETS TURNER IN TITLE GO

Scientific wrestling is bound to be the outstanding feature in Thursday night's battle for the world's middleweight championship at the Grand Opera House, as both Joe Turner and Waino Ketonen are among the cleverest mat experts in the world.

Turner has shown such great class at times in all his battles here the fans figure he will make the champion hustle from start to finish and stands a good outside chance of winning.

WITH THE SCHOOLBOYS

Newton High increased its lead in the Suburban League race by flaying Rindge Tech. The game was postponed from early in the season and was not to be played off unless it affected the league standing.

Somerville and Everett are now neck and neck in the race. Somerville's win over Malden put it on even terms with Everett and within two games of the leaders.

Waters, who has been playing in the outfield for Watertown, is taking a crack at pitching. The way he is winning games shows he should have made an earlier start in the box, instead of hiding his ability in the suburbs.

The finals in the District High School meet will be run off next Tuesday at Wood Island Park. As this is only the second meet, many new records will probably be hung up.

Al Horan and Gene Hussey will be the headliners for Hyde Park in the meet. Both are to go in the dashes. Then, Hussey will most likely win the broad jump, as he is now in his best form.

Ray Duffy, Brighton High all-round athlete, is sure to gather some points for his team in the dashes and running broad jump. George McCloskey should bring the total up by winning the shot-put, just as he did last year.

Max Cohen starred for East Boston in the indoor meets and should be able to duplicate his performance of last year by winning the dash and shot-put in the junior division.

Jack McDonald's nine at Watertown has started out like champions and is at the top in the Mystic League, with two games won and no defeats.

The Middlesex School nine looks good in the Private School League. As yet it has not lost a game, and, with Larrabee, its star pitcher in good shape, it should have little trouble keeping going.

"IT'S politics like they play 'em in Albany, only it's ambassadors and kinks we trim, not corporations."

"We can't do it? What the hell do we know about kinks and attaches?"

"No; Weisheim, Breslau and Kestner do that. We lay for the attaches or spin or deal or act handy at the bar and buffet with homesick Americans. No; the fine work—the high-up stuff, is done by Breslau and Weisheim. And I guess there's some fancy skirts somewhere in the game. But they're silent partners, and anyway Weisheim manages that part."

Curfoot, one lank knee over the other, swung his foot thoughtfully to and fro, his ratty eyes lost in dreamy reverie. Brandes tossed his half-consumed cigar out of the open window and set fire to another. Stull waited for Curfoot to make up his mind. After several minutes the latter looked up from his cunning abstraction:

"Well, Ben, put it any way you like, but we're just plain political spies. And what the hell do they hand us over here if ye're pinched?"

"I don't know. What of it?"

"Nothing. If there's good money in it, I'll take a chance."

"There is. Quint backs us. When we get [illegible] coming."

"Ah," said Eddie with a wry face, "that's all [illegible] for the [illegible] or the [illegible] pocket picking——"

"Say, that's what I [illegible] like this young [illegible] Embassy staff [illegible] out lookin' for a quiet game. We furnish the game. We don't go through his pockets; we just pick up whatever falls out and take shorthand copies. Then back go the letters into Fitznoodle's pocket——"

"Yes. Who reads 'em first?"

"Breslau. Or some skirt, maybe."

"What's Breslau?"

"Search me. He's a Dutchman or a Rooshian or some sort of Dodo. What do you care?"

"I don't. All right, Ben. You've got to show me, that's all."

"Show you what?"

"Spot cash!"

"You're in when you handle it?"

"If you show me real money—yes."

"You're on. I'll cash a check of Quint's for you at Monroe's soon as we hit the asphalt! And when you finish counting out your gold nickels put 'em in your pants and play the game! Is that right?"

"Yes."

They exchanged a wary handshake; then, one after another, they leaned back in their seats with the air of honest men who had done their day's work.

Curfoot blinked at Brandes, at his excessively groomed person, at his rings.

"You look prosperous, Eddie."

"It's his business to," remarked Stull.

Brandes yawned:

"It would be a raw deal if there's a war over here," he said listlessly.

"Ah," said Curfoot, "there won't be none."

"Why?"

"The Jews and bankers won't let these kinks mix it."

"That's right, too," nodded Brandes.

But Stull said nothing and his sour, pasty visage turned sourer. It was the only possibility that disturbed him—the only fly in the amber—the only mote that troubled his clairvoyance. Also, he was the only man among the three who didn't think a thing was certain to happen merely because he wanted it to happen.

There was another matter, too, which troubled him. Brandes was unreliable. And who but little Stull should know how unreliable?

For Brandes had always been that. And now Stull knew him to be more than that—knew him to be treacherous.

Gone to Smash.

Whatever in Brandes had been decent, or had, blindly perhaps aspired toward decency, was [illegible] in abeyance. [illegible] Minna Minti had [illegible] of the Carew.

And from that night when he had lost the [illegible] ever stirred [illegible] aspiration [illegible] had gradually [illegible] over in his nature had [illegible] able became treacherous, his stolidity became sullenness. A slow ferocity burned within him [illegible] of a rage which no brooding [illegible] quenched slumbered red [illegible] until his enmity [illegible] a monomania. And his monomania was the ruin of this woman who had taken from him in the very moment of consummation all the he had really loved in the world [illegible] awkward, freckled, red-haired country girl [illegible] life, he saw the vague and [illegible] a wife [illegible]

[illegible] green eyes [illegible] cigar.

Curfoot, still pondering over the "new stuff" offered him, brooded silently in his corner, watching the others out of his tiny, bright eyes.

"[illegible] anything in Lond[on] [illegible]"

"Who was you [illegible] for?"

"[illegible] But Scotland Yard [illegible] and chased the main guy over the water."

"What was you [illegible]"

"Same thing [illegible] for the [illegible]"

"Aw—the kind we squeezed was too high up to holler. Them young lords take their medicine like they wanted it. They ain't like the home bunch that is named after swell hotels."

After a silence he looked up at Brandes.

"What ever become of Minna Minti?" he asked.

Brandes' heavy features remained stolid.

"She got her divorce, didn't she?" insisted Curfoot.

"Yes."

"Alimony?"

"No. She didn't [illegible]"

"How about Venem?"

Brandes remained silent, but Stull said:

"I guess she chucked him. She wouldn't stand for that snake. I got to hand it to her, she ain't that [illegible]"

[illegible] to her. [illegible] She acted white an' got onto Venem afterwards [illegible] Eddie's got him [illegible] and Venem [illegible] followed and showed him up to Minna."

"You got tired of her, didn't you?" said Curfoot to Brandes. But Stull answered for him again:

"Like any man. Eddie needed a [illegible] But no skirt understands."

Brandes said slowly:

"I'll live to fix Minna yet."

"What fixed you," snapped Stull, "was that there Brookhollow stuff——"

"Can it!" retorted Brandes, turning a deep [illegible]

"Aw—don't hand me the true-love stuff, Eddie! If you'd meant it with that little haymaker you'd have [illegible] her."

Brandes' face became crimson with rage:

"You say another word about her and I'll push your block off—you little [illegible]"

Stull shrugged and presently whispered [illegible]:

"That's [illegible] he always makes. I've waited two years, but he won't ring down on the love stuff. I guess he was hit hard that trip. It took a little red-headed, freckled country girl to stop him. But it was [illegible] Brandes, and it certainly [illegible] was there to stay a while."

Turkish Embassy

He's still stuck [illegible]

"I guess [illegible] paper," nodded Stull.

Suddenly Brandes turned on Stull such a look of concentrated hatred that the little gambler's [illegible] features stiffened with surprise.

"Ben," said Brandes in a low voice, which was too indistinct for Neeland to catch, "I'll tell you something now [illegible] know. I saw Quint [illegible] handling the big stuff [illegible]"

"Who?" asked Stull, amazed.

"The Turkish Embassy in Paris. And do you know who plays the fine [illegible] Turks [illegible]

[illegible]

Stull whispered:

"Aw, [illegible] that ain't the game. [illegible] Quint."

[illegible]

Now, how does one hundred and fifty thousand dollars against five [illegible] two [illegible] cheap [illegible]

But the [illegible] of Brandes [illegible] the [illegible] gamblers [illegible]

Only by the [illegible] expressions could Neeland judge that they were discussing matters of vital import [illegible] He listened, he could not hear what they were whispering. And only at intervals he dared glance over his book in their direction.

"Well," said Brandes under his breath, "go on. Spit it out. What's the squeal?"

"My God," whispered Stull. "Quint will [illegible]" Brandes laughed unpleasantly.

[illegible]

Curfoot turned his pointed muzzle toward the window and sneered at the [illegible] landscape.

[illegible] far across [illegible] villas and farms and green with hedgerows, gardens, bouquets of trees and cultivated fields, he caught sight of a fairy structure outlined against the sky. Turning to Brandes:

"Where's the Eiffel Tower?" remarked Curfoot. "Where are we stopping, Eddie?"

"Caffy des Bulgars."

"Where's that?"

"It's where we go to work—Roo Vilna."

Stull's smile was ghastly, but Curfoot winked at Brandes.

Neeland listened, his eyes following the printed pages of his book.

The Love Gambler

A NEW SERIAL BY A FAMOUS WRITER

David DeLaine, War Hero, Is Left Fortune Provided He Marries a Certain Girl

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water.

(Copyright, 1919, Star Company)

"BUT we can arrange all those details later," she said, plainly anxious to end the interview. "Let me see," with a glance at the clock on the mantel-shelf, "it is just five minutes past eleven now. I would like you—I mean I want you to have the limousine here eleven forty-five. I have some shopping to do this morning. My fa—Mr. Leighton told you at what garage we keep the cars?"

"Yes, miss."

"Very well. I shall expect you at a quarter to twelve."

He stepped backward from the room as she gave him a little nod of dismissal, but not before her eyes had rested on his hat. She started as if to speak, then thought better of it.

"She knows this is a queer kind of a hat for a chauffeur to wear," David reflected as he went down the front steps. "I must stop somewhere and get something that looks less like a gentleman's tile than this does."

"Of course, I will have to wear livery later, and equally, of course, my boss will not want to order that until he receives my recommendations. One does not lavish a good livery on a chauffeur who is only on probation. Now I must look up a hat store and get some common-looking thing to cover my head."

He had bought a cap, and was on the way to the garage when he muttered another comment.

"Gee! But Miss Leighton's a stunner all right!

"I wonder if she really is that girl that Aunt Jeanne picked out for me. If so, the dear old lady showed better taste than I gave her credit for. Aunt Jeanne's girl's name was Desiree—a pretty name, too. It would suit my new employer's daughter rather well."

CHAPTER VI.

PROMPTLY at a quarter of twelve Delaine and the limousine were in front of Samuel Leighton's house.

David had driven the car a short way uptown and back, just to be sure that he understood it thoroughly and that his hands had not lost their cunning. On this point at least he has come. Hereafter ring the Nevertheless, he felt uncomfortable as he glanced up at the windows of his employer's home. He did not know what a chauffeur should do at this juncture. Should he ring the bell and announce his presence, or should he wait outside until it suited Miss Leighton's pleasure to come out?

Door Opened

At the end of five minutes the front door opened and his employer's daughter appeared. He sprang down from the driver's seat and opened the door of the car for her. He knew that chauffeurs did this, and was aware that it was expected of him. He felt as if he ought to uncover his head at the same time, as he had always been most courtly in his manners to women. But he recalled his present position, and touched his hat as he had seen coachmen do.

Miss Leighton paused, her foot on the step of the car.

"Smith," she said, "of course you do not know yet what my wishes are. But I always like my chauffeur to announce to the maid that he had come. Hereafter ring the bell as soon as you arrive and tell Norah that you are here."

"Yes, Miss."

She stepped into the car, sat down, and looked at him as if waiting for some action on his part. For a moment he was all confusion. Plainly something more was expected of him. All at once he noticed the fur motor-robe, and, unfolding it, threw it over her knees.

"Thanks," she murmured.

She directed him to drive to an address on Park avenue. There she ordered him to tell the hallboy to announce to Mrs. Duffield that the car was here.

David Returns

This command obeyed, David returned to the automobile and stood, as he had seen other chauffeurs do, by the open door. The wind swept down from the north and out of the corners of his eye he saw Miss Leighton draw her furs more closely about her neck. Then, looking at him, she spoke suddenly.

"Smith, where is your overcoat?"

The abrupt question startled him into a momentary dumbness. She repeated the query, her voice stern.

"I—I—do not need one, Miss," he stammered.

"But you do," she insisted. "I can see that you are cold. You should have brought your overcoat. Don't you know that this sudden cold weather might give a cold that might lead to pneumonia?"

He appreciated that evasion would do no good. He was chilly, and had been chilly ever since he took the car from the garage. He had reflected with relief that his livery would undoubtedly include an overcoat.

"I am sorry, Miss, but I have no overcoat that would be suitable for me to wear while driving."

"But you surely have an outer coat of some kind," she insisted. "What have you been wearing this Autumn?"

How persistent she was. "My army overcoat," he said bluntly.

She caught her breath in surprise. "Your army coat! You were in the service?"

"Yes, Miss."

"I am glad you were!" she said, and now she smiled kindly. "I was wondering why a strong young man like you was out of the service. By the way—how does it happen that you are out of it now?"

He swallowed hard, yet he answered: "My health, Miss. I had a slight accident."

"That accounts for your looking rather pale and thin. What kind of an accident did you have?"

"To a lung."

PRICES RECEDE IN BOSTON MARKET

Trading Less Active and Trading Here Reflects New York

At the opening most issues dealt in on the Boston exchange showed gains, but the local market soon became irregular and presented about the same aspects as the one in New York.

Waldorf, Gray & Davis, Bigheart and American International, issues listed yesterday, all declined. They were active, as were Swift & Co. and United Shoe. The last named showed a good gain during the morning, but Swift was the weakest packing stock, and they were lower as a group.

Coppers were quiet, but rather firm. Ventura Oil and Helvetia receded and United Fruit sold lower. Warren Brothers showed a small gain in early trading, which was not of so large volume as yesterday. American Telephone was strong in this market.

Charles A. Price of Price & Co., No. 70 State street, has been elected a member of the Boston Stock Exchange.

AWARD OF RAIL CONTRACT NOT EXPECTED AT ONCE

The Railway Administration has received bids for furnishing 200,000 tons of steel rails, but it is expected that there will be a delay of several days at least before any contract is awarded. Nothing is known concerning the prices named by steel producers, but it is generally believed that they will be found as high as were set when the Industrial Board was endeavoring to obtain a rate which would stabilize the market.

Very little is being said about public demand for steel products, but the impression prevails that mills are receiving more orders. The trade is apparently encouraged by the outlook.

Meat Prices to Be Higher

According to Armour & Co. the prospect is that meat price valuations will not only be maintained, but go higher. European and domestic demands are increasing, while stocks are comparatively small. In some quarters it is predicted that in the future Americans will eat as little meat as Europeans have in the past. For many years in the Old World only the rich could afford that kind of a diet.

Cotton Market Opens Firm

New York, May 20.—Wet weather in the cotton belt, firm cables and active goods market caused an opening advance of 4 to 6 points in cotton. Later offerings from longs and Southern selling led to a decline of a dozen points. Opening prices were: May, 30.20; July, 28.85; August, 27.95; October, 27.20; December, 26.75; January, 26.53; March, 26.30.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, May 20.—Corn opened ¼c to 1½c higher. Oats were ¼c higher. Provisions opened lower. Opening prices were: Corn—May, $1.75¼; July, $1.62 to $1.62½; September, $1.56¼ to $1.57. Oats—July, 67c; September, 63¼c. Ribs—July, $27.25.

RAILS STRONG DURING THE MORNING

Oils and Motors Failed to Retain All Early Gains

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, failing to rally to any extent after a reaction, which began soon after the opening. Among weakest issues were American Sugar, Cuba Cane, General Electric, Lackawanna Steel, Marine common and United Cigar Stores. They were off from one to two points at their lowest. The price range was narrower than for some time, and trading not so active. Issues to show strength during the morning included Texas and Pacific, Royal Dutch, new and old, Industrial Alcohol, General Motors, Chandler, Barrett Co., American Agricultural Chemical and American International. Industrial Alcohol was up more than two points, at its highest. New York Central, Southern Pacific and St. Paul were rails to advance the most. At the end of the morning many issues had lost all gains. Prices were at about the lowest when the list was averaged. The market tone has become heavy.

RAILS SHOWED STRENGTH.

Rails as a class showed strength and for awhile oils and motors ruled higher as groups, with Mexican Petroleum and Pan-American in the lead in regard to gain. General Motors was the strongest in its section of the list, with Chandler close behind. Shipping issues were not affected much by the announcement that the International Mercantile Marine Company has received a renewal of the offer of a London syndicate to purchase the ships, securities and all other assets of the company's British subsidiaries.

There was no activity for coppers but they were lower during the forenoon. It is reported from New York that the larger copper agencies this morning quoted 16⅝c for nearby shipment copper metal and 17c for June and July deliveries. These prices represent advances of ¼c to ½c since late Monday.

MARKET STRONG AT OPENING.

At the opening the market was rather strong, a number of issues advancing from fractions to more than a point, with Marine preferred, American International and Mexican Petroleum among those to show largest gains. Advances were small on the average, however, and demand for stocks was not acute. As soon as buying orders were filled, it was found that the supply of stocks was large and the list became irregular as to price changes, and the tone was rather heavy for thirty minutes or more. During the end of the first hour the market grew a little firmer. It was not as active as it has ruled of late. The public did not seem so keen to speculate this morning and the professional trading element was more conservative.

Big interests are supposed to believe that a reaction is due, if not inevitable. The short interest is smaller and there is a general disposition to take profits and go slower. That the market is weaker technically is admitted on all sides. On the other hand the opinion prevails in financial districts that the price trend is still up and likely to continue in that direction for a long time. Another advance is predicted as soon as an overdue reaction has spent its force and there is at present some uncertainty as to developments at Versailles before the week ends. Recent selling of stocks is attributed to important interests and further liquidation is looked for from such sources on every rally for awhile.

CORPORATE MATURITIES NOT LARGE IN JUNE

Corporate maturities for June will total $48,196,800 compared with $32,522,200 in May this year and $31,430,840 for June last year. Since the United States entered the war corporations have done as little financing as possible as a rule.

Railroad maturities for next month aggregate but $11,830,840; industrial maturities total $14,674,400, and public utility bond maturing will amount to but $22,686,600. The largest maturity in the whole list is $10,000,000 Armour & Co. convertible debentures.

March Farm Machinery Exports

Exports of agricultural implements for March this year amounted to $4,500,969, against $2,798,896 in 1918 and $4,726,799 in March, 1914. In nine months ended with March exports totaled $25,638,942 in 1919, $24,[illegible]036 in 1918, $16,717,450 in 1917 and $25,558,295 in 1914.

Big Cotton Export Company

The charter of the proposed Cotton Export Corporation, adopted at a convention in New Orleans, provides for $100,000,000 capitalization, and it will all be in common stock valued at $50 par. NOVEL DANCING FEATURE AT KEITH'S

Alice Eis, once again headliner at Keith's Theatre, demonstrated her ability as an interpreter of terpsichorean roles last night. Supported by James Templeton, the program offered by Miss Eis was varied and extravagant and a large audience encored the various numbers heartily.

The concluding number of Miss Eis' act, "The Shadow of Pajay," a story of India, was realistic and weird.

The bill is one of all-round excellence. There are a number of dancing and singing acts, all well done.

Ray Fern and Marion Davis are seen in "A Nightmare Revue." George Whiting and Sadie Burt have a similar act called "Their 1919 Edition of Song Sayings." Ruby Norton and Sammy Lee follow with another, and Alice Eis with James Templeton complete the dancing and singing acts.

Jane Courthope has a real live sketch in "Our Family," true to life. The scene depicted can be seen at almost any family table, and this act alone is well worth seeing. Then there are the Lightner Girls and Newton Alexander, with the Dennis Brothers and Fred Berrens completing the bill.

BOSTON THEATRE—Priscilla Dean, the dainty little screen star, presents a thrilling photodrama in "The Exquisite Thief" at the Boston Theatre. It is a brilliant, wholesome and exciting drama of the world's under side in six big reels.

The latest and best screen dramas and comedies will be found at the following home town theatres:

BRIGHTON THEATRE, BRIGHTON—Features on Tuesday Chas. Ray in "The Hired Man" and a Mack Sennett comedy. On Wednesday the leading feature will be Corinne Griffith in "The Adventure Shop," "The Silent Mystery" and the Mutt & Jeff comedy.

CENTRAL SQUARE THATRE, EAST BOSTON—The last three days show Fannie Ward in her wonderful production, "Common Clay." The latest comedy and weekly pictures will complete an exceptionally good bill.

DAY SQUARE THEATRE, EAST BOSTON—Wednesday and Thursday will feature Madelaine Traverse in "Gambling in Souls." This picture shows how far one woman went and the results. The companion feature is "The Silent Mystery," with Francis Ford, Mutt and Jeff and the up-to-date weekly news. Thursday night, amateurs.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE, DORCHESTER—Mary Pickford drew hundreds of her many friends at both performances yesterday in her latest and one of her best photoplays, "Capt. Kidd, Jr." "The Red Glove" and four acts of vaudeville are also shown.

REGENT THEATRE, ARLINGTON—Presents on Wednesday and Thursday Enid Bennett in "The Law of Men" and as a companion feature Shirley Mason will be seen in "The Rescuing Angel." The Burton Holmes Travelogue will also be shown.

HOME THEATRE, EVERETT—Features on Wednesday and Thursday Gladys Leslie in "A Stitch in Time" and Norma Talmadge in "The Probation Wife." The latest Kinogram News and other features are on the same bill.

FELLSWAY THEATRE, MEDFORD—Will show on Wednesday and Thursday Constance Talmadge in "Good Night, Paul," 14th episode, of "The Lightning Raider" and a special feature, "The Last Hike of the Y. D." Also Fatty Arbuckle in "Bathing Beauties."

MEDFORD THEATRE, MEDFORD—Will feature for the entire week an exceptionally good bill, showing all-star cast features, latest comedies and weekly bureau.

DUDLEY THEATRE, ROXBURY—The bill for the first half of the week is headed by Elsie Ferguson in "Eyes of the Soul" and "The Salt of the Earth." On the same bill is the delicious and timely comedy, "Oh, You Women." The bill will change Thursday, when Wallace Reid in "The Roaring Road," Enid Bennett in "The Law of Men" and Ruth Roland in "The Tiger's Trail" are featured.

SHAWMUT THEATRE, ROXBURY—Will show this Thursday, Friday and Saturday the king of all Western stars, Tom Mix in "Fighting for Gold" and on the same bill Marguerite Clarke in "Let's Elope." The second episode of the new serial, "The Carter Case," will be shown on the same program.

GORMAN'S THEATRE, ROSLINDALE—Will feature for the next two days an all-star cast feature, latest comedy and other pictures and vaudeville.

HYDE PARK THEATRE, HYDE PARK—The best ventilated and coolest photoplay house in Hyde Park will give its patrons the finest and best screen productions and the latest feature vaudeville.

MARLBORO THEATRE, MARLBORO—Will show its patrons the best allstar film productions that have been seen in all the big cities. They make the Marlboro Theatre the talk of the town.

MALDEN ORPHEUM, MALDEN—Features for the last half of this week Charles Ray in "The Sheriff's Son" and other pictures complete the program.

NEEDHAM THEATRE, NEEDHAM—Will show for Wednesday an all-star cast in "The Still Alarm." Burton Holmes Travelogue and the Pathe News and others.

GORDON'S CENTRAL SQUARE THEATRE, CAMBRIDGE—Features for the first three days, Lila Lee in "Rustling a Bride"; Harry Rodgers in recitals; unusual bill of five acts of vaudeville headed by Frank Stafford and company.

EMPIRE THEATRE, FALL RIVER—Shows today and tomorrow Charlie Chaplin in "Shanghaied," Chas. Ray in "The Busher," other pictures and Loew's Vaudeville.

City Loans

Newport, R. I., will receive bids to 5 p. m., May 21, for the purchase at discount of $10,000 temporary loan, maturing Sept. 3, 1919.

Wellesley, Mass., has awarded a temporary loan of $100,000, dated May 19 and maturing November 19, 1919, to the Old Colony Trust Company at 4.30 per cent plus $5 premium.

Revere, Mass., will receive bids until 11 a. m., Tuesday, May 20, for the purchase of the following $31,420 loans: $6,000 water extension; $3,570 sewer construction; $6,500 sidewalks; $15,350 paving; maturing $5,420 in 1920, $5,000 in 1921, $4,500 in each of the years 1922 to 1924 inclusive, and $1,500 $1,500 1925 to 1930 inclusive.

CELTIC DRAMA AT ARLINGTON IS FINE PLAY

"Little Peggy O'Moore," a four-act romantic drama by Oscar O'Shea and Edward C. Lilley, is all that the title indicates, and there is plenty of good Celtic atmosphere at the Arlington Theatre this week.

And it all culminates in the last act when Senator Murphy, formerly Mayor Murphy, aged thirty-eight, proposes to Peggy, his ward, nineteen, in the most luxurious of gardens yet set up by expert scenic dens yet set up by expert scenic artists, under the direction of Manager Masson.

And there are politics, plenty of them, with Matt Hogan, boss and campaign manager, conducting affairs in a self-possessed manner until he meets Mary Montague in the same delectable garden and discovers that he has found his own boss for the future.

But if everything went smoothly there wouldn't be any play, so there is an evil banker who robs the bank in which he is president and then puts the blame on Mayor Murphy, the innocent, who thereby loses the election in favor of one Edward Richmond, who is also a rival of the Mayor's for the hand of Peggy.

Here is plenty of complication and double crossing to satisfy the most particular of audiences.

A bit of melodrama is added for good measure when the Mayor attempts to quell the mob below his office window and is shot by an angry and frantic man who believes he has lost all his savings from the bank that has failed.

Good comedy is furnished by Dorris Montague and Tom Anderson, who make and break vows throughout the four acts until quarrels are made up and happiness reigns.

Mark Kent as Hogan was up to his best standard and carried a sympathetic audience with him. Dudley Ayers, as the Mayor, was dignified and pleasing, though less convincing as a native born Irishman. Miss Ruth Robinson handled Peggy with rich humor and taste, with excellent brogue. Arthur Buchanan, bank president and defaulter, accomplished what was expected of him, while other members of the large cast carried the illusion and completed a successful performance.

GLOBE THEATRE—The bill of photoplays presented yesterday at the Globe Theatre were of exceeding good quality. The first showings were given of the screen version of Hall Caine's popular novel, "The Woman Thou Gavest Me." This story, because of its sensational theme and treatment, provoked an immense amount of discussion, even while running serially in a prominent magazine. The gifted author's talent for handling big themes and forcing home his lessons made this story one of his greatest in the eyes of the public.

1¢ For Something That Usually Costs $12

This wonderful 12-piece set of glass cooking ware is yours if you buy $100 worth or more at this Big Up-town Store this month. It lasts longer than Aluminum or Tinware, is more sanitary, and makes cooking a pleasure.

Delays Are Dangerous
Under the present furniture conditions. There is a great shortage of furniture, as two or three of the furniture centres have labor troubles. Our confidential advice to you is to buy your furniture now while our stocks are complete and while we yet have in stock furniture that was bought at pre-war prices. We know it will mean a tremendous saving to you later on. If you are not quite ready, we will store goods free until wanted. We again say, do not delay—buy today, because it will mean a tremendous saving to you.

Germs Conquered

85 lbs. for . . . $19.75
Food protected at the highest temperature with a very small ice cost. Our especially constructed sanitary Refrigerators do this and more. Let us show you why. The one shown here holds 85 lbs. of ice, and is attractively priced at $19.75

Other Uptown Values
$4.50 Box Seat Dining Chair $3.00
$15.00 2-inch White Enamel Bed $10.75
$37.00 4-piece Fumed Oak Living Room Suite..........$27.50
These are a few of our unusual up-town values, but—
LOOK FIRST ALL YOU CAN,
then see us. You will more readily see just how much we can save you, as well as how much easier we can furnish your home.

Special Payments
May be arranged if you so desire; you may pay a comfortable amount at time of purchase and a comfortable amount each week until it is paid for. Six months' credit without interest.

No Guaranty of Return on "Water" in R. R. Securities

In the New York Times Henry W. Taft proposes as the basis of the reorganization of our railroads:

(1) That they be grouped regionally;

(2) That in each region a Federal corporation be created, with one class of stock and one class of bonds, to acquire all of the roads within the region, either by exchange of securities or eminent domain; and

(3) That the Government guarantee enough interest on the bonds to float them at par, and 4 per cent. dividends on the stock, later rising to 6 per cent., all profits above these marks to be split equally between Government and stockholders.

In comparison with the private ownership of the past this plan, safeguarded as, of course, it would have to be, so far as possible, by stringent public regulation of security issues and rates, would represent a step forward.

But it would prove a costly step unless the exchange of the new for the old securities were based not on the par of the old or even upon an average of recent market quotations, but on actual valuation.

Mr. Taft presents the view which owners of outstanding railway stocks would like to have the country accept when he writes:

It is undoubtedly true that, in the early days, the questionable, and even dishonest, gains of railroad contractors from branch line construction or of managers from the acquisition of extensions in which they had a personal interest; from overcapitalization, stock gambling, secret rebates and illegal pooling were common.

But through bankruptcies and other corporate transmutations the "water" has been largely squeezed out of railroad securities; the sins of reactionary and rebellious railroad managers, owners and stock jobbers have been expiated, and the railroads of the country are now owned in large part by the smaller investors, who have honestly paid for their stock and bonds at market prices.

This blanket exoneration will be news to thousands of widow and orphan holders of wrecked railroads, for if the sins in the management of such properties have been thus expiated, it has been with far at their cost.

Moreover, honest payment for stocks and bonds at market prices does NOT, under our present financial system, carry with it GUARANTY OF VALUE, and never has. The rule in such transactions still is the stern one of "Let the buyer beware."

The fact is that no man today knows how much "WATER" is on these railway stocks.

Under banker control it was not the usual policy of private ownership to convert earnings into assets by paying off debts and building up service. The quick profit was in piling debt upon debt and in deluging a deluded but long credulous public with NEW "WATER."

The greater the earnings the more debt could be floated with easy gain to the underwriters and the stock vendors. Then by alternate inflations and deflations of the market, these privileged insiders could at will catch and fleece the honest investor whether coming or going.

Continuance of this pyramiding of debt and ballooning of capitalization meant inevitably the cumulative taxing of industry and commerce by a rate structure that, but for this artificial burden, would have declined automatically, thus making needless so much attempted official regulation which, in the end, proved ineffective.

It was to find a safer basis of future action that the Congress a few years ago, under the La Follette resolution, authorized a physical valuation of our railroads.

This is an undertaking so great that year may yet be required to complete it. But the data it will supply are ABSOLUTELY ESSENTIAL if the United States is to buy out private ownership intelligently or escape the creation of new obstacles to a future purchase on equitable terms.

When next you read in plutocracy's organs derisive comment upon the "waste of public funds" in this "unnecessary" valuation "adventure," please bear the foregoing in mind.

If the public were now making an offer of purchase it might be worth while, for the sake of a quick transfer, to take some chances on exchanging good money for "water." For the public could then end the pyramiding of debt by which private ownership has for so long imposed on American investors and American shippers alike. And to end this evil quickly would be worth a considerable bonus, especially if it went to really honest investors and not to the rascals.

But the plan of Henry W. Taft aims at no such end. It would blandly absolve all the wreckers and looters of the past. IT WOULD PUT UPON AN INDEFINITE AMOUNT OF INFLATED CAPITALIZATION THE VITALIZING STAMP OF GOVERNMENT APPROVAL. And it would bind the American people TO PAY INTEREST INDEFINITELY on this vast sum, of which they had ALREADY BEEN ROBBED.

Nor is this all, or even the worst.

IT WOULD INSURE A PRIME MARKET FOR ALL THE "WATER" THAT PRIVATE INGENUITY COULD HEREAFTER FLOAT. IT WOULD REDOUBLE THE INCENTIVE FOR PRIVATE INTERESTS TO BEAT THE EASY-GOING PUBLIC REGULATORS OF PROPERTY THEY DID NOT OWN AND THUS INSURE THE SAME BREAKDOWN OF THE PROPOSED REGULATION THAT HAS ATTENDED OUR PREVIOUS EXPERIMENTS IN THIS DIRECTION.

This newspaper is not in favor of such a condonation of past rascality or such unthinking continuance of the temptations to its repetition.

The way to unify, safeguard and improve the transportation systems of the United States, on land or water, is for the United States to OWN them and RUN them on a PUBLIC SERVICE BASIS.

Less than this will bring on new betrayals of the public interest, new disappointment of the public's hopes, and new proof that "he who hesitates is lost."

Patter and Chatter

A Chant on "Classes"

(Men are not divided by the kind of work they do, but by the kind of men they are.—Henry Ford.)

WHEN Grim Suspense sits on the fence
And everybody sort o' shivers,
Our old friend Hank just turns the crank,
And epigrams roll out like Flivvers.
Like dear old Hen, we've studied men,
And, speaking of the power that guides 'em,
The work they do, we chirp to you,
Is JUST EXACTLY what divides 'em!

In any line, work coarse or fine,
You'll find both gentlemen and muckers.
And some work well from bell to bell.
And some are feeble, brainless suckers.
When anything divides a crew
The reason lurks not very far.
It is the kind of work they do
Which shows the kind of men they are!

THAT man who toiled through all his youth
To raise his flag above the throng
Is more a man than the fool who ran
His youth away with mirth and song!
Pity the slave who to his grave
Is hounded by the despot dumb,
But pity not that fool whose lot
Is what he let his lot become!

AND so we say and say anew,
That, high or low, or near or far,
It is the kind of work men do
Which shows the kind of men they are!

By K. C. B.

Coblenz-on-the-Rhine, Germany.

DEAR K. C. B.—In a paper from home I have read that the Salvation Army some time in May is to make an appeal in the United States for funds with which to carry on its work. As an American soldier, who, while under fire and under bombardment from German gas and high explosives, has been supplied with doughnuts and hot chocolate by Salvation Army workers—and as a reader of your column, clippings of which come to me regularly—I ask that you say to your readers that no matter what they may give to the Salvation Army they will never be able to pay the debt they owe that organization.

I do not mean that they can never pay for the doughnuts and hot chocolate. Of course, they can do that. But they can never pay for that wonderful spirit of bravery that kept the S. A. workers always at the front.

For some of us who are still over here, won't you please, K. C. B., say a word for the Salvationists?

M. B. MURPHY, Second Lieutenant, Infantry.

I CAN remember.
WHEN THEY first came INTO MY home town.
AND QUARTERED themselves.
IN AN old rink.
WITH A sawdust floor.
AND BEAT their drums.
AND THEIR tambourines.
WHILE THE good church folk.
HELD UP their hands.
AND CRIED "Sacrilege."
AND I can remember.
IT WAS noised about.
THAT OUR village drunkard.
HAD HIT the trail.
TO THE mourners' bench.
AND IT proved to be true.
FOR I saw him myself.
AS HE marched with them.
AND CRIED "Amen!"
RIGHT OUT on the corner.
JUST A block away.
FROM WHERE I lived.
AND BEFORE they came.
HE'D BEEN given up.
AS A very bad job.
AND YEARS after that.
THE GREAT war came.
AND THEY dropped their drums.
AND THEIR tambourines.
AND WITHOUT any noise.
AND WITHOUT any "drives."
THEY WENT on their way.
TO THE battleground.
AND WE didn't know.
THAT THEY were there.
UNTIL WORD came back.
THAT UP at the front.
THEY WERE serving food.
AND GOOD warm drink.
TO THE fighting men.
AND NOW they're back.
AND THE war is done.
AND THEY'RE coming to us.
ON THE record made.
AND THEY'RE asking us.
IF WE'LL do our bit.
UNTO THE end.
THAT THEY may go back.
TO THEIR peacetime work.
THAT FOR fifty years.
HAS BEEN up at the front.
WHERE WEAK men fall.
AND IN their name.
AND THE name of the soldier.
WHO WRITES to me.
I ASK your aid.

I THANK you.

A LESSON IN THE SUBLIME CONFIDENCE OF YOUTH

By Mrs. Wilson Woodrow

A CONCEITED puppy! I doubt if any other three words in the language can call up such an obnoxious picture.

We all have had to endure him as the son of some friend or in other circumstances which restrained us from homicide, gritting our teeth helplessly as he paraded before us his strutting mannerisms and affectations.

And his feminine counterpart is no better—whether as the supercilious high school girl who takes delight in correcting her elders, or the Lydia Languish who at sixteen has all the airs and graces of a woman of the world.

Conceit is essentially a fault of youth—the one fault of youth which Experience finds it hardest to bear. And Experience does its best on every occasion and at every opportunity to knock the conceit out of Youth. Experience regards this as a duty; it is for Youth's own good. Yet, after all, conceit is Youth's greatest asset.

I knew a "conceited puppy" once—such a perfect type that one had only to meet him to long to snub him. He was about seventeen when I first encountered him, and probably no more bumptious and self-sufficient specimen has afflicted this earth since Absalom flaunted his yellow head in the City of David.

Audacious Assurance

As a measure of his assurance, I recall one incident when he called at the office of a noted financier with whom he was only slightly acquainted either to get a reference or upon some similar errand of purely personal importance.

The financier, not wishing to be bothered, sent out word that he was engaged. But did that fease the complacency of the young man waiting in the ante-room? Not at all.

"Well, go back and tell him that I have only ten minutes at my disposal," he instructed, "and that consequently he will have to interrupt whatever he is doing."

And with such confident authority did he speak that the hypnotized secretary risked the ire of his testy chief to deliver the impudent message.

More than that, the unapproachable financier came out—it may have been to blast, annihilate and destroy. But as Sir Charles Napier once pointed out, the calm, steady gaze of the human eye will quell the angriest lion and send him slinking in retreat.

The young man did not get the recommendation he was after. Instead, before he left, he had received the offer of a responsible position with the financier himself, and ultimately he rose to be the latter's right-hand man.

Some one once asked that eminent personage how he could stand such a conceited puppy about him.

"I can't," replied the financier; "but I keep him because with my knowledge and his conceit I find there is nothing we cannot together accomplish."

Unlimited Self-Confidence

And it was not only in the domain of business that this precious youth shone. To hear him talk about himself, one would have imagined him a second Admirable Crichton. There was apparently no province of human endeavor—literature, science, art, music, sport—in which he did not believe he could excel, if he but chose to put his mind to it. He looked with listerless eye upon the achievements of the great, and always seemed to imply that he could easily go them one better.

And the worst of it was that he was constantly proving his contention. He published a book before he was twenty which attracted wide and very favorable notice. He was a crack swimmer and tennis player, an adept on the violin, an amateur actor who might have passed as a professional, and the inventor of a valuable and ingenious electrical device.

But, to use the vernacular, he got there. And what is more, he has learned the art and the grace of concealing his ingrained belief in his own abilities, and is now a very agreeable person.

The Best City Editor Celebrating Freedom With Murder
New Style Hotel

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

On this day, John B. Bogart, the best city editor that ever lived in this country, or out of it, celebrates the fiftieth anniversary of his wedding.

Mr. Bogart did as much as Charles A. Dana to make the reputation of Charles A. Dana, when he, Bogart was city editor of the New York Sun. Many able writers were graduated from Mr. Bogart's school of hard work. Some of them don't know it, but they owe to him the fact that they got out of a rut. He would not let them stay in it.

He got out of his men all that was in them, and put into them something that they did not have. Many men living comfortably today, including this writer, can testify to that.

Mr. Bogart could render a public service by writing a book telling city editors and employers in general how they may get the best work out of their employes, by putting their own best into those employes.

Woodrow Wilson and other godfathers of the peace league should warn the Slavic peoples of Central Europe to stop murdering Jews by way of celebrating their new found freedom. If you turned a man out of prison and he began murdering, you would admit that you had made a mistake and lock him up again.

When you free so-called "oppressed nationalities" and those "oppressed" ones celebrate with the murder of Jews on a large scale, you know that you have made a mistake.

The Slavic gentlemen whose joy finds expression in the killing of defenceless men, women and children, should be taught by the heads of the peace league, and by machine gun fire if necessary, that they must celebrate in some other way.

A man who owns big hotels in New York has bought for $1,000,000 six hundred acres near the city. On this land he will build a huge country hotel, golf links and other luxuries. When his customers get tired of the city hotel they can go out to the country hotel. Nice place for their children in hot weather.

Suppose the people that haven't any decent apartments, can't get any, can't pay high rents in the big cities, were allowed to use some of the money that their numbers create.

Suppose they were permitted to own street car lines and land, and erect buildings with rates that they produce. They might have apartments at reasonable prices, located in the country, with playgrounds for children, public schools at hand, public street car lines to take the workers and the shoppers to the city.

But that would never do, for it would interfere with thorough exploitation of the crowd by the more intelligent. And to interfere with exploitation of the crowd is anarchy and seriously to suggest it is Bolshevism.

The democratic cat is in Paris, the Republican mice are in Washington, in control of Congress. Politics between now and 1920, when Woodrow Wilson or another will be chosen to succeed Woodrow Wilson as President, should be interesting and exciting. There are fifty candidates for the Presidency announced. Hundreds, hopeful, and thousands, longing. The curious thing is that the majority of these candidates are entirely unknown to the majority of the people and could offer no sound reason why they should be elected President.

Another interesting fact is that somebody is apt to be nominated and elected because, being unknown, nothing can be said against him.

The Dull Scholar

A lady school teacher writes:

"I have charge of the lower classes in a public school. The other day I asked a class in arithmetic to put down Roman numerals from one to twelve. To my surprise the most backward child in the school was the first to finish the task. His page was perfectly correct. This boy was considered dull and was two years too old to be in this grade.

"'Very good, William,' I said. 'How did you manage to do it so quickly?'

"'I copied 'em off the clock,' he said."
